DELIGE TO FACE HIS ACCUSERS NEXT WEEK

Counsel for Suspect in Baudis Murder Asks Hearing--District Attorney Waiting for Analysis of Prisoner's Clothing--Razor Still Missing.

Bert Delige, the colored man suspected of the cruel murder of Mrs. John Baudis, at Scotia, must face his accusers at a preliminary hearing before Judge Orvis next week. The exact date for the hearing has not been fixed, although by District Attorney Runkle it was said that it would probably be held during the latter part of the week. Delige's trial in court will be held in the second week in December.

By that time two vital points in the murder mystery will be cleared up. One is whether the spots found on the clothing worn by Delige on the night of the murder show traces of Mrs. Baudis' blood. The other is whether the finger mark on the fence, over which the murderer jumped in his mad race to escape, shows evidence of blood from Mrs. Baudis' body. It is expected that Dr. Pond, of State College, who is making a chemical analysis of the clothing and finger mark, will be ready with his report before the preliminary hearing is held.

Meanwhile, Delige's razor remains missing and the suspected man continues unable or unwilling to say where it may be found. No. 1 dam, at Scotia, nearby the route traveled by the murderer on the night Mrs. Baudis was slain, may be drained of several feet of water in the hope of finding the much-wanted razor. All efforts to find the instrument in the fields surrounding the scene of the terrible crime have thus far been in vain. The search will not be abandoned, however, until the razor is found.

In his steel cell in the county jail, Delige continues to wear the same cool, indifferent attitude which marked his course immediately following his arrest. He has retained as counsel, Colonel E. R. Chambers, who defended him when he was several years ago convicted of shooting a young man from Scotia. Colonel Chambers on Tuesday prepared an appplication for a writ in habeas corpus in behalf of Delige. It rests with Judge Orvis to fix the date for the preliminary hearing, at which numerous witnesses from Scotia will be present.

Any possible theory of suicide is ridiculed by District Attorney Runkle, who is in charge of the prosecution.

By counsel for Delige it will not be contended that Mrs. Baudis took her own life. Delige's defense will be a flat de nial that he killed Mrs. Baudis. He will attempt to support this with an alibi. Delige's defense will be that he was at his mother's home at the time Mrs. Baudis was murdered. When brought to trial he will present witnesses who are expected by Delige to swear that he was in his mother's house and, therefore, could not have been at the scene of the crime. Delige adheres to his statement that he did not know of Mrs. Baudis' murder until the morning of the day following her death.

Throughout the entire Scotia section of the county profound sympathy prevails for the family of the murdered woman. It was but a few days before she met such a horrible death that she had told neighbors of her delight in being able to keep her family together and how happy she was in being able to make ends meet in providing for their support. The struggle to find food and clothing had been hard, the task a severe one, but with the courage that could be instilled in a mother's breast, only, Mrs. Baudis had worked hard and long and with cheerful fortitude was looking ahead to the timewhen she and those depending on her would be able to live in comfort. On the evening of the murder she was at the home of Wilson Ghaner, at Scotia, and there she related her success in providing for her family. It was with a smile to those remaining behind that she stepped out into the darkness of the night and started on her way home. How she was felled to the ground and her throat cut from ear to ear, and left to die in a sickening pool of blood, was fully told in "The Republican" last week.

The Baudis boys and their little sister plan keeping up the home, at Scotia. Three of the boys have work at the Scotia mines. Their weekly income will be enough to keep the family together. Two of the Baudis children will be important witnesses when Delige is called to trial for the murder of their mother.

DEATH OF REUBEN P. MILLER

Well Known Resident of Bellefonte Dies of Bright's Disease.

After an illness of about four weeks, Reuben Peters Miller, well known as a merchant and citizen, died at his late home, in Bush Addition, on Tuesday morning, shortly after 2 o'clock. Mr. Miller had been in failing health for the last two years but it was only in the last month or so that he suffered a pronounced decline, which gradually exhausted his strength and resulted in his death.

Funeral services were held today, at 2 o'clock, from the United Evangelical church.

Surviving Mr. Miller are a widow and the following children: Mrs. Simon Chalmer, of Duluth, Minn.; Mrs. Robert Thomas, of Pittsburg; Mrs. Robert Klinger, of Bellefonte, and Harry, Daniel, Marie and Lizzie, at home. The following brothers also survive. George, William, James and Ellsworth.

Farmer's Hand Crushed.

David Grenninger, a son of John Grenninger, of near Loganton, and employed on the farm of John R. Schrack, near Booneville, had his right hand badly mutilated and crushed in a corn husking machine on Monday, last. The hand was amputated at the Lock Haven hospital.

WILLIAM HOMAN DEAD

Well Known Haines Township Farmer Found Dead in Bed.

William Homan, for many years a well known resident and farmer in Haines township, was found dead in bed at his home on Wednesday of last week. His death was due to heart failure. Funeral services were held on Saturday, from the Union church, near Potters Mills, where the deceased at one time lived.

Mr. Homan was aged 82 years, 5 months and 19 days. Surviving are a widow and the following children: John, Jacob and Susan, at home; George, of Aaronsburg; Samuel, of Centre Hall; and Mrs. Thomas Shull, of Haines township. Deceased was an active and faithful member of the Lutheran church and by a wide circle of admiring friends his death is sincerely mourned.

Football Saturday.

A fine game of football is in store for those who go to Hughes Field on Saturday. The Bellefonte Academy will meet the strong Y. M. C. A. team from Tyrone. The game will be called at 2.30 sharp. Admission 25 cents. The visiting team is composed of college students and are confident of winning.

Jefferson Force Dead.

Jefferson Force, a well known resident of Pine Glenn, died at his late home at that place on Friday morning of last week. Deceased was aged about 76 years. Funeral services were held on Sunday, with interment in the Messiah church cemetery, at Pine Glenn.

Dr. Crippen Convicted.

Dr. Crippen was on Saturday convicted in London for the murder of his wife, who before her marriage was Belle Elmore, an actress. Ethel Clara LeNeve, the young girl who fled with Dr. Crippen and was arrested with him in Canada, was acquitted.

10-TON ICE PLANT TO BE BUILT HERE

George Doll Will Locate New Industry Near Nittany Furnace.

TO SELL THE OUTPUT

Bellefonte is to have an ice manufacturing plant, the capacity to be upward of 10 tons every twenty-four hours and the product to be sold wholesale and retail.

The plant will be built and operated by George Doll, of this place. It will be located near the Nittany furnace, a short distance beyond the furnace office. Mr. Doll expects to have the foundations completed before winter weather sets in. He plans having the plant completed and in full operation early next spring.

Mr. Doll plans building a concrete forebay, and also installing a large turbine at the old rolling mill dam. A fine spring on the site of the proposed plant will furnish him the water required in the manufacture of ice.

It is not improbable that eventually the present ice manufacturing plant of Mr. Doll's brother, William, will be removed from its present location, in the rear of the Bush Arcade, and combined with the proposed larger plant at the furnace. The plant of William Doll has a capacity of two tons every twenty-four hours.

Killed by Train.

While working at the Bellefonte furnace, on Saturday, last, J. Albert Rote conductor on the furnace freight train, was jolted off a car and then run down and killed. His body was badly mangled and was only removed after a freight car loaded with pig iron had been raised by means of jacks. Deceased was well and favorably known and was aged 31 years. Surviving are a widow, who was Miss Lizzie Miller; his mother, Mrs. Amanda Rote, of Coleville, and the following brothers and sisters; Harry and John, Mrs. Frank Smith and Mrs. Frank Downing, all of Coleville. Funeral services were held on Monday, conducted by Rev. C. W. Winey.

Hospital Notes.

Mrs. Nancy McDonald, of Beech Creek; admitted for treatment.

Howard Nagle, of Milesburg; operation.

Ruth Green, of Bellefonte; operation for appendicitis.

Mrs. Rebecca Welsh, of Bellefonte; admitted for treatment.

Grace Weaver, of Spring Mills; appendicitis.

Miriam Housel, of Milesburg; Mrs. Maude Musser, Mr. Danis, of Bellefonte; Mrs. Isabelle Grenoble and Mr. McKinney, of State College, discharged as cured.

Mifflinburg Station Robbed.

Safe crackers, on Monday of last week, blew open the safe in the Mifflinburg railroad ticket office. It is supposed that the thieves were frightened away before they could gather up their plunder. When Station Agent G. R. Stover went to the office later in the morning he found most of the money which had been in the safe, lying on the floor, also a file, hammer and chisel. The thieves escaped without leaving behind anything to reveal their identity.

DuBois Chosen.

DuBois, Clearfield County, is the only town in Pennsylvania to be selected for experimenting with a postal savings bank. DuBois was chosen because of the varied character of its population.

ODD REQUEST REVEALED IN STRANGE OLD WILL

Former Head of State College Asked School Teachers for Funds

TO SUPPORT FAMILY

A remarkably interesting document is a will filed at the Court House almost forty years ago in which Thomas H. Burrows, for a time president of the Agricultural College, now State College, declared that he had spent his all in promoting education and therefore called upon the public school teachers in the State to contribute toward a fund for the support of his wife and daughters. The will constitutes one of the most unique documents stored away among old records in the Court House.

So far as may be learned, there was no general response to Mr. Burrows' appeal for financial support. However, that he fully expected there would be is emphasized by the fact that in his will he named Governor John W. Geary and James P. Wickersham, then "Superintendent of Common Schools," also their successors in office, as trustees of the fund and guardians of his daughters until the latter might become of age. No part of the fund that Mr. Burrows planned to raise in the strange manner outlined was intended by him to go to his sons. The latter, he stipulated in the will, were to "shift for themselves."

Mr. Burrows was president of State College in 1870 and was succeeded by Rev. James Calver. It was in his declining days that Mr. Burrows wrote the following stange and unique will:

Agricultural College, Centre County, Pa., February 23, 1871.

I, Thomas H. Burrows, president of Agricultural College, of Centre County, Pennsylvania, having started in life at about thirty years of age with a competency for self and family and having expended the whole thereof to the last cent in the service of the State in the establishment of the common schools, the School Journal the State Normal Schools, the schools for soldiers' orphans, and now having laid down my life in the attempt to consolidate institution according to the original designs, am of the opinion that I have just claims for compensation from the State of Pennsylvania for this outlay of time, money, life and good fortune in behalf of self and family. Accordingly I do hereby call upon each school teacher in this State to contribute of his means to this purpose to raise a fund therefrom to be deposited in the hands of the Governor of the State and the Superintendent of Common Schools now in existence, and their successors in office, and to be securely guarded and invested for this purpose during and for the life of my dearly beloved wife, Salome J. Burrows. The proceeds to be for her use during life and at her death to go share and share alike to her then surviving daughters, and then I ignore as to the boys to shift for themselves.

In testimony of which I hereby appoint the trustees aforesaid and their two successors in office with equal full power to invest, sell and dispose of said trust money if any be received for the uses and purposes above set forth and none other.

I also hereby devise and bequeath to said wife, Salome, all my property real, personal and mixed for sale and separate uses and I would nominate Governor John W. Geary and J. P. Wickersham as aforesaid as testimentary guardians of my children till of age and responsible for himself. In testimony whereof I have finally signed my name this day and year aforesaid.

T. H. BURROWS.

To his Excellency J. W. Geary, Hon. James P. Wickersham Trustees and their successors in office.

Mr. Voter, Think This Over.

In cleverly written articles the Philadelphia "North American" has been slanderously attacking John K. Tener, the Republican nominee for Governor.

In its issue of Sunday, last, the "North American," in headlines that extended across its front page, announced: "Penrose, after Lengthy Conference, Orders Tener to Face Leaders Here Today."

Now, what are the facts?

Mr. Tener visited Bellefonte on Saturday. On the previous Thursday, Gabriel H. Moyer, who is in charge of Mr. Tener's campaign party, telephoned from Williamsport to County Chairman Keller, inquiring in regard to plans for the proposed reception here. Mr. Moyer at that time explained to Chairman Keller that Mr. Tener had made his plans for going to Philadelphia on Sunday. Chairman Keller suggested that at the conclusion of the reception here on Saturday night Mr. Tener go to Lock Haven in an automobile and there take a midnight train for Philadelphia. This was agreed to and Chairman Keller thereupon engaged the automobile. Mr. Tener, in line with his plans as made on Thursday, went to Lock Haven in the automobile and at that point took a train for Philadelphia.

Mr. Voter, these are the facts—facts which you may verify by personal inquiry of Chairman Keller.

Also, Mr. Voter, now that you know the facts, how much reliance will you place on other equally misleading statements in the newspaper that is Mr. Tener's chief enemy and Mr. Berry's chief supporter?

TENER GETS WARRANT FOR HIS DEFAMERS

Republican Nominee for Governor Causes Arrest of Editor of "North American"--A Manly Statement Telling Complete Story of His Affairs.

In a statement which at once strikes a responsive chord in the hearts of all men who are honest and who demand justice and fair play in politics as in business affairs, John K. Tener, the Republican nominee for Governor, on Monday, last, made full and sweeping reply to the slanderous attacks on him in the Philadelphia "North American." In striking contrast to the calibre of those who are trying to stab him in the dark, Mr. Tener fearlessly defends his business connections and, moreover, publicly volunteers to refund to any man, woman or child every dollar that may have been lost in investments through the use of his name during the two or three months that he served as president of the National Utilities Corporation.

While in Philadelphia he issued a warrant for the arrest of E. A. Van Valkenburg, editor of the "North American," charging him with criminal libel. Mr. Tener's statement, issued at Philadelphia, follows:

Ordinarily I would pay no attention to the falsehoods that have been uttered by an untruthful newspaper, but it may be that some fair-minded men have been misled by the way facts have been distorted, and for this reason, and for this reason alone, I desire to make a short statement which covers my position:

In December of last year I was visited in Washington by William L. Chrisman, Esq., an attorney of Philadelphia, and F. L. Smart, who requested me to become president of the National Public Utilities Corporation. I had favorably known Mr. Smart for some time, but not knowing Mr. Chrisman, made inquiry and learned that he was a lawyer of excellent reputation and with good business connections. I also learned that other reputable men, General Russell Thayer, Colonel William Bender Wilson, Joseph S. Mack, Frederick S. Schoff, William B. Margerum and Simeon Merrill were directors.

I was also informed that the company had been incorporated according to law, was properly organized and could legitimately carry on the business for which it was intended, which was the business of a railroad from Astoria to a point beyond Seaside in the State of Oregan.

I also made inquiry of those believed to be familiar with the locality as to the practicability of the enterprise. After this I concluded to accept the presidency and served in that office, and as director during the first quarter of this year, but as my labors in Congress were daily increasing, because of important legislation then pending, which required practically all of my time, I resigned from the company. For some reason or orther my resignation was not accepted at the time I tendered it, but I received no salary as president except for the months of January and February, although entitled to the salary for March.

Fifty thousand dollars, par value, of the stock was sent to me and I immediately returned it with a letter stating that I would not accept it, as I had not earned it and was not entitled to it. A little later $20,000 par value of the stock was sent to me, which I also returned, and for the same reason.

I believed the object of this company to be legitimate, and notwithstanding the vicious attacks which have been made against it, I am not convinced to the contrary, and to day am of the opinion that it could be successfully carried out. Charles N. Bennett, a civil engineer of high repute in his profession, whom I sent to Oregon on my election to the presidency, reported favorably upon it, and within a week past has reiterated that opinion, and has stated that if eastern capital could not be had to carry the work through, local capital there could be had to do it. I believe that the worst blow the stockholders of this company have received is the result of unwarranted and malicious attacks through the colums of this hypocritical newspaper.

I never promoted the National Public Utilies Corporation; was not a participant in its promotion; never sold any of its stock, or solicited anybody to buy any of its stock. My connection with it was entirely honorable and straightforward, as I have above described.

I am informed that about $39,000 in cash (not nearly $2,000,000, as published), has been paid to the company for stock, and to show that I do not wish to evade any responsibility in the matter, if any man, relying upon my being president, or upon my name being used in connection with this company during the time I was president, presents proof to me that he purchased any of the stock and paid cash to the company I will take the stock from him and give him exactly what he paid for it in cash.

Whatever was done by this company as respects the taking over of any other or subsidiary companies or enterprises was before my connection with it, and with which I had nothing to do, but believe, and had the right to believe, from the character of those who were in control, and from my investigation, that all had been properly and legally done.

As to Messrs. Bromley and Haines, I never heard of them until I became connected with the company and not until the matter was exploited by yellow journalism did I ever hear any adverse criticism affecting them.

Concerning my connection with the Security Life and Annuity Company, with others I sold my stock some years ago, and soon after, at the request of the company's president, Mr. W. O. Johnson, of Chicago, I again became a member of its Board of Directors and still serve in that capacity. The company is and always has been eminently successful.

In view of the scurrilous attacks, I believe it to be no more than just to myself, as an assurance to the people of my business integrity and ability, to say that I am now and have been for twelve years president of the First National Bank of Charleroi, Pennsylvania, I am now and for several years have been secretary and treasurer of the Charleroi Savings and Trust Company, and I have several other business connections—all prosperous—all well managed, and have the confidence of every one connected or having to do with them.

I know that certain interests are striving to induce someone to be the "tool" to the issue (for political effect) of a warrant for my arrest. For the proper condemnation of such conduct I confidently appeal to the sense of fair play of the electors of Pennsylvania and challenge my detractors to proceed. I court any judicial investigation for I am ready to meet any and all accusers in a court of justice instead of trying to answer hidden foes who are straining every point to accomplish, for political purposes, my business and political ruin.

Tener Visits Bellefonte.

John K. Tener, Republican standard bearer and nominee for Governor, was the guest of Centre County Republicans on Saturday, last, and the reception in his honor was one of the most flattering accorded any candidate in this or any other place in many years. For more than two hours the distinguished visitor stood in the lobby of the Brockerhoff House, shaking hands with men representing all parties and all sections of the county.

It has been the good fortune of the writer to travel over Pennsylvania with probably seven or eight campaign parties, including three candidates for Gov-

Mr. Tener Arrests Accuser.

John K. Tener on Monday instituted proceedings in Philadelphia against E. A. VanValkenburg, editor of the Philadelphia "North American" charging him with publishing in that newspaper false, wilful and malicious libels on Mr. Tener's character. The warrant was the result of the publications in the "North American" in regard to Mr. Tener's connection with the National Utilities Corporation, Mr. Tener charging that the articles were published with the intent of injuring the name and business of Mr. Tener.

A hearing in the case will be held in Philadelphia tomorrow, (Friday.) Mr.

PENNSYLVANIA DAY

Annual Event at State College to be Celebrated November 11.

Friday, November 11, has been set aside as the date for celebrating "Pennsylvania Day" at State College, and elaborate plans are under way for making the annual event this year the most successful and interesting in the history of the institution. Acceptances thus far received indicate that the exercises will be participated in by men of prominence from all parts of the State.

The exercises of the day will consist of a short program in the Auditorium; an inspection of the buildings, laboratories, shops and campus; a review of the regiment of 900 college cadets; and a game of football between the teams of the Sophomore and Freshman classes. By this varied program it is hoped to give visitors a glimpse of the daily life of the fifteen hundred students now enjoying the benefits of an education provided largely by the munificence of the state. Special provision will be made to care for representatives of the press.

On the evening before Pennsylvania Day at 5.30 p. m., supper will be served at the Woman's Building by the students in Domestic Science to all college guests. Immediately afterward, an informal reception will be given in the rooms of the Engineering Club with music by the college musical organizations.

The members of the various Fraternities invite all guests to attend their house-party dances on Thursday evening.

The Bellefonte club will entertain over night those who arrive at Bellefonte late Thursday afternoon. Kindly notifiy John Blanchard, president, time of arrival.

The University Club, located at 139 Frazier Street, offers the freedom of its house to all who receive this invitation to attend the exercises of Pennsylvania Day.

To a Friend.

The Philadelphia Inquirer a few days ago published an account of an incident in that city which awakened many pleasant memories in the mind of the writer of these few lines. During our several years in Philadelphia it was our good fortune to learn to know and have the friendship of David H. Lane, for half a century a prominent figure in Pennsylvania politics. A political leader renowned for his splendid judgment, a courtly, cultured gentleman of the old school, a friend among friends, David H. Lane, now in his seventies, is held in affectionate esteem by a circle of loyal friends whose ranks are thinned only as the Grim Reaper carries one and then another over the border line. In his home ward, the Twentieth, in Philadelphia, he is surrounded by a band of followers who will know no other leader until their beloved Chieftain, Mr. Lane, [illegible] of the Great Commander.

A few nights ago, at the Fidelity Club of which he is president and where he spends a part of each evening that he is in the city, his friends presented him with a basket of flowers. The affection in which Mr. Lane is held by his "boys," was in some small measure revealed by William N. Henderson, a life-long friend and associate, who, in making the presentation speech, said:

"For a number of years, as a humble student of human nature, I have studied the bond of relationship which exists between Mr. Lane and ourselves, with the result that I find it unique and without a parallel; we are one family and he is the father.

"We go to him with all our joys and sorrows; if you are happy, he is pleased; if you meet with misfortune, he sympathizes with you—not surface sympathy, but as a father to his children.

"To you who are in political life in this ward, it was he who put the breath into that life, and it is, therefore, true that your political existence is due to your father, Mr. Lane.

"Those in business whom he has assisted financially, or what is more valuable, with his incomparable advice and guidance—does that not make the fact more apparent? Now what does he receive from us in return? Nothing. What does he ask? Our good behavior. What do we owe him? Our undying love and loyalty. He invites you to come to him at all times. But he is jealous of his children's loyalty, and will brook no outside advice or interference as to his duty to us, or our duty to him. In this spirit let us all honor our father. Mr. David H. Lane."

The gallant old leader, in accepting the gift, responded in a happy vein—happy because he was at home and among friends.

Fads And Fashions.

Black and white veilings are chiefly in favor.

Long gloves are leaping into a new popularity.

Solid greens are promised a decided popularity.

Early showings of fabrics for suits are mostly tweed and serge, in mixed colorings. Velvets will be extremely fashionable for winter wear in dark colors with a fine stripe of another hue.

Scarfs grow in favor. For day wear with tailor costumes the supple satin scarf is worn. For afternoon dress the scarf of mousseline de soie or voile.

The uncurled ostrich plume is a newcomer in fashion, with already considerable popularity.

Facings of bright satin silk or velvet are popular on white or black dresses.

FINE HORSE SHOW

Over 100 Entries at Annual Exhibition at State College.

There were over 100 entries at the third annual exhibition of farm, work and livery horses, held on Beaver Field, at State College, last week. The event was under the auspices of the Department of Animal Husbandry of the State College and was the most successful yet held.

An interesting feature was the horse-judging contest for boys between the ages of 15 and 20 years, which resulted as follows:

Arthur Burwell, Pine Grove Mills, won first prize, a scholarship in the winter short course in agriculture; score, 213 out of a possible of 300.

Taylor Thompson, State College, won second prize, a scholarship to "Farmers' Week," and subscription to several periodicals; score 210.

Robert Meyer, Centre Hall, third prize, a valuable stock book and subscription to several periodcals; score, 204.

Those participating in this contest were Joseph Alexander, Unionville; Daniel R. Fisher, Warriorsmark; Robert Meyer, Calvin Smith, Paul Bradford, William Bradford, Centre Hall, Arthur Burwell, Foster Musser, Pine Grove Mills; Rolf Thomas, Taylor Thompson, William E. Martin, Raymond Dale, State College; Paul Shuey, Lemont.

In the several other contests, the results were as follows:

Class A—Heavy, William Thompson, Jr., first; J. E. Rishel second; E. C Ross third. Medium, Hiram Thompson first; J. M. Peters second. Light, Ed. Houser first; John Garner second.

Class C—Heavy, George W. Gingrich first; Potter-Hoy Hardware Company second. Light, R. C. Pearce first.

Class E—George B. Thompson first; J. B. Martin second.

Class O—Heavy, J. E. Osmond first. Light, Terry Boal first.

Class P—Miss Anna J. Valentine first.

There were no entries in classes B, H, J and K.

Arbor Day Proclamation.

"The observance of Arbor Day has created a patriotic interest in the planning and preservation of trees. It has convinced the public of the importance of preventing and stopping forest fires, of the need of foresting the vast mountain areas from which the timber has been cut and the necessity of conserving the forests at the source of our streams, thereby to regulate the flow of water and to lessen the floods and freshets which rob the land of its soil and fertility.

"Morever, it is now generally admitted that Arbor Day should be observed when all the country schools are in session. For this purpose Friday, October 28, 1919, is designated as Autumnal Arbor Day and all the schools, both public and private, are hereby urged to observe the day by suitable exercises, especially by the planting of trees for fruit and shade, for beauty and for the sake of the many industries in which wood is used. Let us plant trees for the sake of ourselves and our posterity, for the sake of the nation and of humanity everywhere. Let us put our prayers for future blessings into visable shapes by starting trees that will answer our prayers by making possible conservation of our national resources and the perpetuation of our national greatness." Nathan C. Schaeffer, State Supt. of Public Instruction.

Reformed Church Synod

The 164th annual business session of the Eastern synod of the Reformed church was held at Reading last week. About 300 ministers and elders were in attendance. These officers were elected:

President, Rev. Dr. James W. Meminger, Lancaster; vice president, Rev. T. O. Stem, Turbotsville; corresponding secretary, Rev. Robert M. Kern, Allentown; recording clerk, Rev. J. G. Rupp, Northampton; treasurer, B. Monroe Hoffman, Reading.

At the opening sessions after a heated debate the synod reiterated the action of last year's synod in the matter of sending apportionments for missions direct to the synod treasurer, instead of to the secretaries of the mission boards as some classis have done.

"It Beats All"

This is quoted from a letter of M. Stockwell, Hannibal, Mo. "I recently used Foley's Honey and Tar for the first time. To say I am pleased dose not half express my feelings. It beats all the remedies I ever used. I contracted a bad cold andlwas threatened with pneumonia. The first doses gave great relief and on bottle completely cured me." Contain no opiates. Sold by C. HUSTON SENTENCED

State Capital Architect Gets Prison Term; Takes an Appeal.

Joseph M. Huston, the State Capital architect and the last man to be convicted in the Capital scandals, was last week sentenced, at Harrisburg, to pay a fine of $500 and undergo imprisonment in the eastern penitentiary for not less than six months or more than two years. Huston was also ordered to pay the costs of the trial. The charge on which Huston was convicted was that of defrauding the State by certifying a false bill for desks for the Capital building.

Immediately on being sentenced Huston was taken in charge by Sheriff Fletcher, of Dauphin County, pending word from Philadelphia, where hiscounsel had filed an appeal to the State Supreme Court. Later in the day word was received that the appeal had been granted. Huston was released under $25,000 bail.

Huston appeared in Court five minutes before the time set for sentence and was cool and collected when the Court pronounced the penalty. The whole proceeding in Court lasted less than three minutes. District Attorney Weiss moved for sentence, reciting the fact that the other men indicted with Huston in the count on which he was convicted had been severed and tried separately.

Attorneys for the defendant made no plea for him. As soon as Huston was called to the bar Judge Kunkel asked if he had any statement to make.

"No, sir, we have said all we intend to this Court." replied Mr. Shields.

Huston heard the sentence without any show of feeling. Sheriff J. R. Fletcher was in Court, and being notified of the preparations for the appeal and supersedeas sent a deputy with the architect to his hotel.

Huston was tried last spring on an indictment found in September, 1907, the cases of Sanderson, Snyder, Shumaker and Mathues, jointly indicted. having been severed. They were all convicted in the first case, in which Huston received a severance and in which he gave some aid to the State. He stood trial last spring and was convicted after 24 hours of deliberation by a jury which reached a verdict of guilty of fraud, which the Court declined to receive. It then brought in a verdict of guilty of conspiracy. Argument was made in the summer for a new trial.

Costs in the case so far amount to $494.01, without the witness bill.

The sentence meted out to Huston is the maximum under the indeterminate sentence law. Under its provisions he must serve the minimum, but may be released thereafter on recommendation of the Board of Prison Inspectors, provided the State Board of Pardons and the Governor approve. The recommendation depends upon behavior.

Attorneys for the State and Huston will probably arrange for an early hearing of the appeal in the Supreme Court. The argument may be heard in November.

Sanderson and the three former officials convicted with him were given the maximum sentence of two years.

DEATH OF MRS. DORRIS

Grand-daughter of Col. Miles, Pioneer Settler of Milesburg.

Mrs. Julia Miles Dorris died at her residence, 401 Penn street, on Monday night at 9.30 o'clock, says the Huntingdon Era. Her death though not unexpected because of her long illness was sudden since she appeared to be as well as she had for several weeks until an hour before the end.

Mrs. Dorris was born in Huntingdon and was the daughter of George Miles, and Julia McConnell Miles, the former for many years a leader of the bar of Central Pennsylvania. Her grandfather, Col. Richard Miles, of the Revolutionary army, settled shortly after the Revolution in Centre county, in the vicinity of Milesburg, which town was named in his honor. He was a brother of Col. Samuel Miles, who served with distinction in the Revolution and afterwards as mayor of Philadelphia.

On her mother's side, she was descended from Major Matthew McConnell. Major McConnell, some years after the Revolution in which he served with honors, settled with his wife in Cambria county where he held large grants of land voted him for money advanced to the government during that conflict and for the services he had rendered.

Mrs. Dorris was married to Col. William Dorris, long president of the First National bank of Huntingdon and a member of the Huntingdon county bar and who, at his death a few years ago, was its senior member. To that marriage three children were born Anne, Julia and Mary, all of whom are living, the former two living at home and the latter the wife of Charles Herbert Miller.

The deceased was a member of the Pennsylvania Forestry Association and a regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

In her youth, she became a member of the Presbyterian church and was always active in church work. In that labor, her specialty, if she had one, was in the home and foreign mission fields.

She was a woman of rare culture and great intellectual force. Though for six years an invalid, constantly suffering, she retained her faculties unimpared to the hour of her death.

FATAL HUNTING ACCIDENT

Arthur Moore, of Tyrone, Accidently Killed by a Friend.

One of the most distressing tragedies that have been enacted in this community in years, says the Tyrone Herald, occurred on Wednesday of last week in the hollow leading to the Plummer farm east of Tyrone, when Arthur Moore a resident of Tyrone Forges, was accidentally shot and instantly killed by his bosom friend and companion and next door neighbor, Fred Shively. Arthur Moore had been to the mountain during the morning hours and returned about dinner time. Luck was against him as no game was in sight. He took the borrowed gun home and decided to rest the balance of the day. Shortly after dinner Fred Shively and William Switzer appeared on the scene and the three boys, with only one gun, started for Plummer's hollow, where it was rumored turkeys were seen a short time before. The boys proceeded into the hills and were unsuccessful, as nothing crossed their trail, and as darkness was coming on they hurried out of the woods and were walking at a fast clip to the main road that leads to the Forge.

A short distance up the mountain from the tanks of the Pennsylvania railroad, near what is known as the storage dam or reservoir, Moore and Switzer were walking abreast along the road with Shively following Moore about five steps in the rear. Neither Moore or Switzer had a gun and as they walked along Moore turned his head to pass a laughing joke to his friend Shively in regards to some work being done at the forge, where the boys were employed, when the trigger on Shively's gun caught in a torn pocket and as quick as a flash an explosion occurred and Moore toppled over dead. The No. 4 shot entered the left lower side of Moore's mouth and forced its way on through into the brain. The gun was so close to Moore's face that the wads were forced through the skull, while his clothing was burned with powder.

THE TRUE TEST

Tried in Bellefonte, It Has Stood the Test.

The hardest test is the test of time and Doan's Kidney Pills have stood it well in Bellefonte. Kidney sufferers can hardly ask for stronger proof than the following:

Mrs. E. J. Hogarth, W. High St., Bellefonte, Pa., says: "I suffered for years from a weakness of my kidneys, accompanied by a constant, dull backache. I used plasters and liniments, but found no relief and I was suffering severely when Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention. If I took cold, it settled in my kidneys and at such times, the secretions from these organs passed too frequently. Reading about Doan's Kidney Pills, I decided to give them a trial and procured a box from Green's Pharmacy Co. Soon after commencing their use, the backache and other difficulties disappeared and my kidneys no longer trouble me. I am grateful to Doan's Kidney Pills for what they have done for me." (Statement given Oct. 21, 1907.)

Two years later. Mrs. Hogarth was interviewed on Nov. 22,.1909 and she said:" I am pleased to confirm my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills. I have had but little trouble from my kidneys since I was cured in 1907."

Good results always follow the use of Foley Kidney Pills. They contain just the ingredients necessary to tone, strengthen and regulate the kidneys and bladder, and to cure backache. Sold by C. M. Parrish.

A Generous And Charitable Wish.

"I wish all might know of the benefit I received four your Foley's Kidney Remedy," says I. N. Regan, Farmer, Mo. His kidneys and bladder gave him so much pain, misery and annoyance, he could not work, nor sleep. He says Foley's Kidney Remedy completely cured him. Sold by C. M. Parrish.

October Government Crop Report.

Late maturing crops gained slightly in condition during September, instead of deterioration as usual, corn especially distinguishing itself, says Bradstreet's. The result is that the government returns point to bumper yields of corn and oats, and a larger than expected yield of wheat, but smaller yields of potatoes, flaxseed and hay. The total crop of cereals in the country promises a yield 6.4 per cent. larger than in 1909, and 2.6 per cent. more than the aggregate record yields of the past.

Epilepsy, Fits

Convulsions, or Spasms and St. Vitus' Dance are Nervous Diseases. Most cases can be cured by strengthening and building up the nervous system. To do this a nerve medicine is needed. Dr. Miles' Nervine will be found efficacious and satisfactory. It has cured many cases of these diseases and we believe it will cure you. We can give you names of many who have been cured through its use. Write for advice.

"My son John had epilepsy for years, and after having him treated by specialists for over 2 years he still continued to have spells. I had almost given up in despair, but knowing the virtue of Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills for sick headache, I concluded to try the Nervine. During June, 1906, I gave him a teaspoonful three times a day, then in July I gave it as directed, and I could see that he was improving, and he has not had a spell since August 28, 1906, and has taken no medicine since Jan.-07. I am writing the case just as it is hoping it will induce others to try it."

HOW TO MAKE OUT DEPOSIT SLIP.

The Blank deposit slips furnished by the bank should always be filled out by the depositor and proved by the teller; this serves as a double check on the transaction, and if at any future time a question should arise as to the total amount deposited, or any separate item, the slip in your own handwriting can be produced bythe bank as unquestionable proof.

The cash is to be entered according to specification in proper amounts, and the checks, drafts or other paper must be listed separately below. In depositing checks on local banks, write the name of the bank on which they are drawn opposite the amount, and if out of town paper, write name of city on which drawn.

Write the figures in a column, add up, and write the total amount below.

Present your pass book, deposit slip and items of deposit to the Receiving Teller, and see that the proper amount is entered to your credit on your book.

We send deposit slips on request.

ELECT NO TREASURER

Supreme Court Decides That Wright Serves Until 1913.

There will be no State Treasurer elected at the election on November 8, next. The State Supreme Court handed down an opinion to the effect that State Treasurer Wright's appointment holds good for the full term to which J. A. Stober was last year elected. It will be recalled that Mr. Stober died after being elected State Treasurer but before he had formally taken charge of the office. Governor Stuart thereupon appointed Mr. Wright to the vacancy. A new question was raised, namely, whether Mr. Wright's appointment was good until the next succeeding general election or for the full term to which Mr. Stober was elected. The Supreme Court ruled that it held good for the full term. Consequently, all of the nominations of candidates for State Treasurer are void and their names will not appear on the ballot.

It is held that under previous statutes and the State Constitution a treasurer was elected bi-annually, but that in this case it will be necessary to consider the amendments to the Constitution adopted in 1909. One of these amendments says specifically the State Treasurer elected in 1909 shall serve three years, and that the next Treasurer shall be elected in November, 1912, his term expiring the first Monday in May, 1913. Should a vacancy occur the Governor has the right to fill the vacancy, as he did in this case.

As the date for the next election of a State Treasurer is to be in 1910, the Court holds a Treasurer cannot be elected either in 1910 or 1911.

Wright, of Susquehanna, will hold office until the first Monday of May, 1913. The next Treasurer will be elected in 1912 for four years.

Attorney General M. Hampton Todd, who presented the case in behalf of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, and the Dauphin county officials, who were made defendants in the amicable proceeding brought by George E. Etter, of this city, to test the matter, said that the Supreme Court had really decided that Mr. Wright took Mr. Stober's place as far as the term is concerned.

The decision settles the question of whether the Governor can appoint to fill a vacancy occurring when a man has been elected and dies before he can qualify.

Secretary of the Commonwealth Robert McAfee will note the decision of the Court on the record of nominations in his office and will not certify any of the seven made for State Treasurer.

A Bedtime Story.

It was a beautiful mountain country where Gus and Katherine lived.

From the pretty valley where the little white cottage home stood this little brother and sister could look away up the rocky slope and along the banks of green tree tops which rose like a mighty hill almost to the clouds. It was a pretty spot, apart from the rest of the world, it seemed, but in spite of this Gus and Katherine were not lonesome. No, they had no little playmates. The nearest house was five miles down the valley. Did I say that they had no playmates. Well, I made a mistake there. They did have two playmates, and funny kinds of playmates they were.

Gus and Katherine never saw them—they only heard them—but they seemed so real that these little people were sure they were there somewhere over among the mountains, and that some day they would come forth from out of their hiding place to greet them.

You don't quite understand?

Well, here is the explanation.

You see every morning Gus and Katherine, laughing and shouting, would rush out of the house to say good morning to the little playmates of somewhere.

They always faced the great mountain.

"Hello," Gus would shout.

"Hello," came back from out of the mountains.

"Hello," shouted Katherine, and a little girl "Hello" would come back sounding just for all the world like Katherine's voice.

Their mother had told them it was the echo, but Gus and Katherine felt sure that some little girl and boy were hidden away somewhere among the waving trees. Some days the children would talk to the little invisible people for over half an hour, and they would say all kinds of things.

There was one funny thing about the conversation. When Gus and Katherine would shout long sentences the little invisible people would shout back only part of it.

One morning Gus shouted "When are you going to come over to our house to play?"

"Our house to play," was all that the little people would shout back.

Gus and Katherine, of course, understood by this that the invisible playmates wanted them to come to their house, and they were as sorry as could be that they did not know where they lived.—Edith Havens in the Philadelphia Evening Times.

Bath For Mine Mules.

"Some time ago the proprietors of a colliery at Plains, Pa., which is known as the Henry, built a big bath tub for the mules in the company's mines. I can't say that this was done altogether from an altruistic motive. The owners, after consulting with veterinarians, were convinced that a daily bath would prolong the life and vigor of the mules which they used in the mines. At any rate, they built a big bath about 40 feet long, and something like four feet deep, near the entrance to the stable. The mules are pretty tired, as you can imagine, at the end of a day's work. But you should see them race from the mine entrance to the bath tub. You would think they had been out on pasture for six months, from the speed they show as they gallop down to the stable entrance. They clamber over each other in their efforts to get into the water.

"I'll venture to say that a horse would make a break for the stable and the stall to get the second meal of the day, if worked as hard as one of those mules, and would pass by the bath. But not so with those mules. Hungry as they must be, they rush into the bath. Some of the animals are so reluctant to leave the water that the stablemen have to drive them out. One old mule, that has drawn a car for years, absolutely declines to leave the pool inside of 10 minutes.

Directly over the bath runs a perforated pipe. When stablemen think the mules have been in the water long enough, the water is run through this pipe, and the four-footed bathers get a fine shower bath. One of the foremen recently told me that some of the animals will actually point to the shower pipe with their noses in order to call the attention of the stablemen to their desire for a shower bath. One evening the stablemen were in somewhat of a hurry, and tried to get the mules out of the water without the shower. One animal, more determined than the rest, refused to be driven out, and the water was turned on to oblige that particular mule. This saved time, as the mule is a pretty difficult object even for a dozen men to handle, especially in the water. —Washington Post.

Value of the Reindeer.

Deprive the Laplander of his reindeer and you would deprive him of his most valued assistant. How could he travel without his pair of raindeer harnessed to his sledge? Certainly they could not race as fast as a trotting horse, but they can carry persons or luggage at a fair speed securely over frozen lakes or rivers and the snow-coated ground, and their driver seldom needs to use a whip, says the Baltimore Sun.

The reindeer has large black hoofs behind which are false or secondary hoofs, the result is that when running they make a clattering sound which may be heard a good distance away. The reindeer has much endurance and takes a long journey without seeming tired, though it is only about 4½ feet in height and not very strong. Its horns are long and slender, with branches of rounded antlers, but they are not much used in combat, like those of some other deer.

The largest reindeer are found where the weather is coldest, and their color is lighter; usually it is brown and white but in the case of old animals the hair is sometimes quite white. From the skin of the reindeer the Laplanders get not only their clothes, but also bedding and tents. The milk is used for drink and made into cheese, and the flesh is also good to eat, the tongue and haunches being particularly liked. Pemmican, an important article of food, is made by pouring fat over the pounded meat and mixing them well together.

Household Hints.

To remove onion odor from hands, rub them with a piece of raw celery.

If a knife is made hot, it will cut hot bread and cake more readily.

A good muslin petticoat rarely wears out at the top as quickly as it does about the ruffled hem. When the edge of the embroidery frays cut it off with an even edge, hem it narrowly and add a little flounce of torchon lace.

For cleaning water bottles, salt and vinegar make a good mixture. Put a teaspoonful of salt in the decanter, moisten with vinegar and shake bottle well until stains are removed.

Linen which has become yellow with age, may be whitened by boiling it in a lather made of one pound of white soap to a gallon of milk. Rinse twice and add bluing to the last water.

When white spots are made on polished wood by the spiling of hot water or hot plates, apply alcohol and it will restore color. Wash off at once.

Commencement Bulletin.

The commencement Bulletin of The Pennsylvania State College just received contains some notable addresses. One is by Dr. S. F. Weber of Louisiana on "The Function of the American High School" and another on "Know Your Position" by John H. Jones, of Pittsburg. The President's statement shows the remarkable growth of this institution in the number of students and the unusual work it is doing for the betterment of the people through its agricultural trains, its mining institutes and its apprentice schools in various cities. The pamphlet also contains the proceedings of a conference of High School Principals of the state called to consider the relations between the public schools and the college. A copy of the bulletin may be obtained by addressing the Registrar, State College, Pa.

FARM NEWS AND VIEWS

Manure Spreading in the Fall—Importance of Testing Cows.

It is sometimes an advantage to plow the ground and spread the manure in the fall, but the kind of land and circumstances of local nature must be considered. If the manure is thoroughly worked into the soil with the harrow there will be but little risk of loss of the soluble matter. Manure, as a rule, is mostly solid material, and the frosts and moisture will assist in disintegrating it. There will also be a saving of time in spreading the manure, as less work will be required during the busy season.

There is now an average of about one cow to every five persons in the United States.

Much of the profits of dairying is eaten up by the cows. A single cow may be all right in appearance and even in quantity of milk yield, and yet she may be merely an expensive luxury, her feeding and care weighing more financially than her butter product. Every cow should be carefully tested, not only as to amount of butter yield, but as to the amount of feed she requires to make it from. The test should involve a careful weighing of feed as well as butter, and cows that do not yield a reasonable profit should be weeded out.

Australia leads the world in sheep farming, with 87,000,000 head. Argentina has 7,500,000; Russia, 58,500,000; United States, 54,700,000; United Kingdom, 30,100,000.

A common goat will eat only one-eighth as much as a cow, but will give more than that proportion in milk. Butter made from goat's milk will not keep, and must be eaten fresh from the churn. In many parts of the East goats are being raised in larger numbers than ever before to supply milk and butter for the very poor.

The horses of Norway are chunky little animals about 60 inches high, hardy and gentle and very strong.

The feeding stuffs inspection law now allows publication in a somewhat simpler form than in previous years of the information secured. The law now demands a statement by the license, and a determination by experiment station chemists of the amount of fibre in all brands where this ingredient runs above 5 per cent; and requires a similar statement and determination of all ingredients in compounded feeds. These additional facts are now given for each brand, in addition to protein and fat, thus making unnecessary any supplementary tables and comments to call attention to brands noticeable for their deficiencies of their contest of undersirable materials.

A neglected orchard does the farm much damage in reflecting discredit upon the manager. The careless orchardist breeds insects and fungi for his neighbor. There is little encouragement for fruit growers who will not prune and spray.

A sulky plow often pulls harder than the walking plow, because the sulky sticks to its work without dodging the hard spots. Watch the motion of the steadiest-running walking plow, and you will notice it is more or less rambling in its course, going the route of least resistance. A careless plowman is more apt to "cut and cover" with the walking plow. A sulky plow that is adjusted right will not allow the taking of too much land.

To produce strong and healthy heifer calves for future producers their dams must be fed generously on nutritious feeds previous to calving. The cow should be allowed to become dry for from six to eight weeks previous to the birth of the calf. She will need this rest from giving milk in order to build up her physical system and to furnish extra nourishment to the developing calf.

The man who is in the habit of selling his horses in the fall to avoid the expense of keeping them in the winter, and buying new animals the followlng spring, will find if he keeps books on his transactions for five years, that he saves no money, and is constantly working at a disadvantage with new horses.

At the end of the growing season cut off asparagus tops and burn them to kill disease and insects. For fertilizing and a winter mulch, any time in late fall apply a heavy coating of manure to the asparagus bed, working the manure into the soil next spring.

A great deal of food is wasted on hogs in winter on account of the careless way in which they are kept. No domestic animals are probably more susceptible to cold and weather changes than swine, and none are provided such poor shelter, generally speaking. On some farms rail pens with a leaking covering serve as winter shelter. The filthy conditions in which hogs are kept is also a subject for severe criticism. Many persons take it for granted that the hog is naturally a filthy or unclean animal in its habits. Force of circumstances over which the hog has no control makes him so. If hogs are provided with good pens, with places for sleeping partitioned by a six-inch board, they will keep their straw beds and sleeping apartments very clean

Tribute to N. S. Bailey.

The conference of the United Brethren church, which met at Johnstown last week, transferred Rev. Newton S. Bailey from Pairhope to New Paris, Bedford county, Pa., and he departed for his new field of labor October 4. Mr. Bailey is an able minister and a fine man, whose departure from Somerset county is much regretted. The Republican has felt proud to number him among its staunch friends and whilom contributors, and wishes the good man great success in his new location. Mrs. Bailey's health has not been very good of late and Mr. Bailey consented to his transfer to Bedford county in the hope that the change would benefit her. Stand by Your Guns!

In a editorial two weeks ago, when John K. Tener was threatened with attack by his enemies, "The Republican" called upon all Republicans in Centre County to stand by their guns. We today repeat that call to arms.

The same crew of political cut-throats now attacking and trying to ruin Mr. Tener four years ago attacked and tried to ruin Governor Stuart. They miserably failed then just as they will miserably fail in this campaign.

All power to the Republican nominee for Governor for his courageous defiance of his enemies. We congratulate him for the enemies he has made.

Mr. Tener is being attacked and slandered because he is a Republican. Every American citizen, who loves honor, fair-play and justice as between man and man, will resent the attempted ruin of Mr. Tener by voting for him on November 8.

Tener Visits Bellefonte.

ernor. It is but stating the plain truth when we say that we have never witnessed in a town the size of Bellefonte a larger or more representative turn-out than was the case at the reception in Mr. Tener's honor. To the writer Mr. Tener expressed himself as having keenly appreciated the hospitality of the people of Centre County.

Mr. Tener arrived in Belletonte on Saturday, shortly after 1 o'clock. As a business associate of D. M. Clemson, formerly of Centre County but now of Pittsburg, he had expressed a desire to visit Scotia and see for himself the iron ore mines worked years ago by Andrew Carnegie and Mr. Clemson. He fully expected to go to Scotia during the afternoon, but a visit by his brother, George E. Tener, to discuss business affairs, necessarily changed all this and Mr. Tener reluctantly abandoned the trip.

Accompanying Mr. Tener were Henry Houck, nominee for Secretary of Internal Affairs; Adjutant General Thomas J. Stewart, Perry A. Shanor, of Pittsburg, a close personal friend of Mr. Tener; Gabriel H. Mover, of Lebanon, who was in charge of the party; Walter Gaither, Mr. Tener's private secretary; Walter J. Christy, of the Pittsburg "Gazette-Times"; Harry S. McDevitt, of the Philadelphia "Press"; Charles C. Campbell, of the Philadelphia "Inquirer"; William Kelso, a traveling representative of the Western Union Telegraph Company, and E. E. Moyer, a stenographer. The newspapermen accompanying Mr. Tener, all of whom are personal friends of the writer, said that everywhere Mr. Tener had been he had been greeted with enthusiasm and that there was every reason to believe that he would be elected by a tremendous plurality.

During the afternoon Mr. Tener and others of his party went out to Hughes Field, where they saw the Bellefonte Academy football eleven defeat the Indiana State Normal School team, 15—5. Mr. Tener was an attentive spectator and applauded the numerous good plays of both teams.

The reception at the Brockerhoff House was begun at 7 o'clock. With County Chairman Keller and other local Republicans Mr. Tener stood a few feet inside the hotel lobby and greeted these who called. In the throng assembled to meet Mr. Tener were men from all parts of the county, many of them having driven twelve and fifteen miles to show their interest in Republican success. Quite a few of those from Bellefonte to call on Mr. Tener were Democrats, who joined with Republicans in extending greetings as citizens.

It was planned to have an informal open-air meeting, with brief speeches by Mr. Tener, Mr. Houck and Adjutant General Stewart, but the night air was so damp that Mr. Tener asked that this part of the program be called off. The reception was scheduled to be concluded at 9 o'clock, but it was not until twenty minutes later that the crowd had thinned out and Mr. Tener was able to leave and keep an engagement to appear at the Elks clubhouse, where he was guest of honor at a splendid turkey dinner. The reception at the Elks was strictly non-political and with the exception of the visiting party all present were members of the lodge. The Elks honored Mr. Tener because of the fact that he is a Past Supreme Exalted Ruler of the order.

To attempt to enumerate one-tenth of those who greeted Mr. Tener at the Brockerhoff House would be to undertake the impossible. Virtually every member of the Republican County Committee was present and in many instances the committeemen were accompanied by several other active Republicans from their respective communities. Their co-operation in making the reception such a splendid success was more than pleasing to Mr. Tener.

All who greeted Mr. Tener during his brief visit here were impressed by his clean-cut features, his conservative and dignified bearing and at the same time an utter lack of anything suggesting the type of candidate who plays to the galleries. Mr. Tener has been wonderfully blessed by nature. Unusually tall, he is built in proportion. His eye is clear and strong, denoting good health and a clean life. In short, it might be said that Mr. Tener is the type of man who needs but to meet the people of a community to impress them with his strong personality and to accentuate in a manner more effective than anything else that he is ruggedly honest and, furthermore, perfectly able to take care of himself.

Death of Michael Kelley.

A sudden death was that on Saturday, last, at 4.30 o'clock, P. M., when Michael Kelley, for years a resident of Bellefonte, was stricken with heart failure and died in the arms of his wife. The news of his death was a shock to many life-long friends. Mr. Kelley had been in more or less feeble health for some time but he was about the house as usual on Saturday and apparently was feeling all right. Late in the afternoon he was out in the yard and chopped an armful of wood. Returning to the house he suddenly called out that something was wrong and throwing his arms about his wife for support, died instantly. Mr. Keiley was born in Kerry County, Ireland, and was aged 67 years. When a boy he came to this county and located in Bellefonte, remaining here ever since. He was a good citizen and a loyal husband and father. Modest and unassuming he won and retained the respect of a host of friends throughout his entire life. Surviving are a widow and the following children: Mary E., Rosa G., Abbie T., and Morris J., all at home. A sister, Julia, resides in Philadelphia. Funeral services were held yesterday morning, at 10 o'clock, with interment in the Catholic cemetery.

Mr. Tener Arrests Accuser.

Tener will be represented by Francis Shunk Brown, A. S. L. Shields and former District Attorney George S. Graham, as counsel. Former Judge James Gay Gordon will appear as counsel for the "North American."

Mr. Tener's affidavit, upon which the warrant for the arrest of Mr. VanValkenburg was issued, was as follows:

"William Gallagher, Subscribing Magistrate.

"On the 24th day of October, 1910, before me the subscriber, a magistrate of the city of Philadelphia, county aforesaid, personally appeared John K. Tener, who, being duly sworn according to law, doth depose and say:

"That on, to wit said October, 1910, and for a period of two years past and upwards, Edward A. VanValkenburg was the editor, controller and director of a certain daily newspaper, named and called the "North American," printed and published in the city and county of Philadelphia by the "North American" Company, of which company the said Edward A. VanValkenburg is and was president.

"That the said Edward A. VanValkenburg, who so then and there being such editor, controller and director as aforesaid of said newspaper, did then and there, to wit, on the 4th day of October, 1910, at the county aforesaid, unlawfully, wilfully, wickedly and maliciously, contriving and intending to injure, oppress, defame and vilify the good name, credit and reputation of deponent and to bring him into public infamy, contempt and disgrace, print, publish and caused and procured to be printed and published in the said certain newspaper, wicked and defamatory libels of and concerning deponent, containing divers false, scandalous, wicked and malicious and libelous words, matters and statements as follows:"

Then follows the articles from the North American of October 14 and October 20.

That the said Edward A. VanValkenburg, by printing and publishing of the said malicious and libelous words and by causing and procuring the printing and publication thereof in said newspaper, did then and there and thereby unlawfully, wilfully and maliciously expose deponent to public hatred, contempt and ridicule, to the great damage, disgrace, scandal and infamy of deponent, contrary to the statutes in such case made and provided.

JOHN K. TENER

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 24th day of October.

WILLIAM GALLAGHER.

Governor Stuart's Indorsement.

Regardless of political lines and conflicting views on issues in the present campaign, it may be truthfully said that Governor Stuart possesses the confidence and respect of the people of Pennsylvania as a man who is rigidly honest and sincere. The people of this state believe in him and have high regard for his judgment. They have learned during his four years as Governor that he will not lend his word of indorsement to anything unless it is in every way worthy and deserving of his support.

Governor Stuart, at a meeting in Harrisburg on Monday night, voluntarily and unreservedly gave his indorsement to the candidacy of John K. Tener for Governor. The Governor not only indorsed Mr. Tener but presided over a meeting in the latter's honor. We commend to the people of Centre County, as worthy of their careful reading and consideration, what Governor Stuart had to say in introducing Mr. Tener to the people of Harrisburg, which was as follows:

"I am here tonight as a Republican in favor of the candidates of the Republican party. We have our nominee for Congress in this district here tonight and that is one of the many important things in the campaign; but I am here tonight to preside and introduce to you, among the other candidates, the candidate of the Republican party for Governor of the State of Pennsylvania.

"I had today a very frank and manly talk with the candidate and he assures me that he understands thoroughly the responsibilities of the great office for which he is a candidate and if he is elected to that office his only ambition will be to give an honorable administration in the interest and for the benefit of all the people of Pennsylvania.

"He assures me that there are no other obligations to ask him or to make him do anything else—and the one thing he desires and the one thing he will do, is that on every question coming before him for his approval or action, he will use his judgment and be guided by what he thinks is for the best benefit of Pennsylvania and her people.

"I am very glad to say that four years ago he was a very loyal friend and supporter of myself in that celebrated campaign and I take great pleasure in introducing to you the man who is the candidate of the Republican party and the man who I am satisfied will do what he promises you he will do if elected to that high and honorable office. I say that with all sincerity.

"An Eye Opener."

The above is the caption of a little leaflet handed us on Tuesday by Mrs. John P. Harris, with the request that it be published. The leaflet was adopted at the recent State convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, at Scranton, and is as follows:

"The proposed amendments to the State Constitution relating to uniform operation of Courts, include a change in our License Courts which opens a way to the overthrow of the 'Dry' territory we now hold in this State.

"Christian voters, men of Pennsylvania, defeat these amendments. Look out for the

"Snake in the Grass."

The author of the above undoubtedly drafted it under a wrong impression as to when the amendments are to be voted for. To amend the State constitution the proposed amendment must first be adopted by two succeeding Legislatures and then approved by the people at the polls. The constitutional amendments now being advertised were adopted by the last Legislature, only, and will not be voted on by the people at the next election, November 8—Ed. "The Republican."

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

There is some difference of opinion as to whether a Company should pay over to its policy-holders all profits above a reasonable expense, or whether large sums of these profits should be used for magazine and periodical advertising. From the stand-point of the policy-holder there can be no discussion. Advertising on a large scale will boom almost anything--a life Insurance company included. But the average man would rather carry his insurance in a small company, and carry it for a small cost, than to contribute to heavy advertising expenses merely in order that his company may have size and prestige. A single page in one of the big periodicals will cost upwards of one tnousand dollars, and ten advertisements of this kind each month, so say nothing of the dozens of magazines and other publications which carry this advertising, simply means that somebody's dividends are going to suffer. The Royal Union is working on the other plan. The Company does only a very limited amount of advertising so far as printed matter is concerne d Their advertising is mainly verbal. It comes from pleased policy-holders, and it costs the Company nothing except an honest discharge of its duties as a life insurance company and a careful safeguarding of the interests of the policy-holders.

The County at a Glance.

Howard.

Last week several of our merchants discovered that some one had been working the old three cent game on them and quite a few of the deceptive little coins were passed. The deceit was not discovered until some of the customers noticed them in their change, the merchants having put them in the dime box in the till and passed them out again without observing them. Suspicion rests on several persons and they are being shadowed.

Among the noticeable improvements in town during the past week is the repainting of the passenger and freight depot. It is the customary light slate color with dark trimmings and base.

Last week station agent W. L. Cooke accepted the invitation of the company by whom he is employed and joined with the other agents of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company as their guests on an excursion to New York City, where they inspected the magnificent new terminal station.

L. C. Thompson was a business visitor to Bellefonte on Wednesday.

Tax Collector J. L. Holter was at the County seat Thursday on a business mission.

Henry Williams was looking after business interests in Lock Haven on Thursday.

C. M. Muffley transacted business in Bellefonte Thursday evening.

Glenn, a son of Harry Williams, of Altoona, has been critically ill the past week or more with typhoid fever. For several days the physician in charge had very tittle hopes of his recovery, but his condition is now more hopeful.

Farmer Albert Schenck was laid up a few days with lumbago, but is again able to be about.

Z. T. Weirick is home from Altoona where he had been employed during the fall season.

Mrs. Solomon Candy and daughter Mrs. Cora Quigg, of Johnsonburg, are visiting friends and relatives in Howard, their one time home.

Walter Holter returned home on Monday from a trip that will long be remembered as a pleasant and instructive one. Last Thursday he went to Bellefonte where he was met by his cousin Eugene Hall, of Unionville, whose guest he was on the special excursion from State College. Mr. Hall is a graduate of State and Thursday afternoon and Friday morning were spent in showing Walter through all the departments and buildings of the big school. Friday noon they left for Philadelphia, arriving there Friday evening. Saturday and Sunday were spent in seeing the big city, thus making a most delightful trip for our young friend.

Pastor Rhoads still continues his revival at Jacksonville and has been assisted on several occasions by Evangelist Diehl. Mr. Diehl is at present employed in Howard and will address the congregation at the Evangelical church next Sabbath morning. Come out and hear a heart to heart talk.

Rev. W. H. Patterson is conducting a series of special meetings in the Christian Chapel each evening and there has been good attendance thus far. A cordial invitation is extended to all to come out and hear the Word expounded

Mr. and Mrs. John Moele were business visitors to Bellefonte on Friday.

The weather during the past few weeks has delighted all but caused the good housewives to defer the house cleaning on account of the dusty condition of the streets. The work is now well on and those upon whom this work devolves can proceed with their cleaning with satisfaction.

Mrs. Stevens, of Lock Haven, visited her sister Mrs. A. W. Gardner for several days.

Eugene Pletcher, of Philadelphia, is enjoying a vacation with his parents and spending part of his time in the woods in quest of game.

Liveryman W. H. Thompson provoked the wrath and indignation of the women folks last Friday afternoon by shutting off the water main without serving notice. "Bill" was having the water piped into one of his new houses and had to tap the main. Not being able to locate the cut-off at the diamond he went to the upper end of town and shut off the water, thus depriving the whole town of its supply. It was just about supper time and caused much inconvenience. When the water was turned in again it stirred up the sediment in the pipes and rendered it unfit for use for some time.

The young folks society of the Evangelical church held a box social at the home of Mrs. Hayes Schenck on Friday evening, having a very pleasant time and adding to their treasury fund.

A. C. Longee, of Lewistown, has been in poor health for several weeks, but latest reports are to the effect that he is improving.

Wm. Beck received a car load of cattle here on Tuesday from Pittsburgh.

W. H. Long shipped a car load of buckwheat from here this week.

George Wolf, of Fiedler, visited his son Summer here over Sunday.

Wm. Wolf and son, of Bellefonte, are laying the brick for W. H. Thompson's new house on West Main street.

Hon. John A. Woodward was business visitor to the county seat on Monday.

William Weber and Dr. W. J. Kurtz transacted business in Bellefonte on Monday.

Miss Lulu Schenck and friend Miss Grace Tomb, of the Lock Haven normal, visited the former's parents over Sunday.

The rally day services of the Epworth League and Sunday school of the Methodist church Sunday evening was a success in every way and was largely atteded. The program was interesting throughout and special music was provided by the choir. Rev. C. C. Shuey, of Bellefonte, was present and gave a very timely and inspiring talk. Remarks were also made by the pastor.

Frank Wetzler and family and Miss Grace Schenck, of Milesburg, attended the rally day services in the Methodist church here Sunday evening.

Pine Grove Mills.

John Fortney and wife, of Boalsburg, spent Sunday at the Dannley home.

A new concrete walk is being put down in front of the Bethel church.

G. W. Ward, of Pittsburg, was here last week, looking after his interest in the water company in which he is the boss stockholder.

J. D. Dreibelbis, wife and family visited friends at State College over Sunday.

Al. Grove and wife, of Bellefonte, were Sunday visitors at the H. H. Goss home, on the Branch.

Will Homan and wife, of Centre Hall, were Branch visitors over Sunday.

Mrs. Susan Fry has been confined to her bed the past week with bronchitis.

Claude and Fred Williams spent Sunday with their friend, A. F. Fry.

Miss Bettie Kimport, with her Aunt Lizzie, enjoyed a drive to Potters Mills and spent Sunday with friends there.

Robert Condo, the village blacksmith, has been off duty the past week, nursing a sore hand. W. C. Collins was his friend in time of need.

Teacher Ed. Williams is confined to his room, suffering from an attack of gall stones. Meanwhile the Young Americans are running loose.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Swartz came up from Tusseyville and spent Sunday with Grandpa Krumrine.

Miss Mary Elder visited friends on the Branch over Sunday.

Mrs. G. W. McWillliams has been quite indisposed the last few days, threatened with a stroke.

Mrs. W. H. Roush was called to Mackeyville to her daughter, Mrs. Anna Martz, who is ill from typhoid fever.

John M. Homan has invested in a new clover huller and is ready for business.

Samuel E. Kimport and his right bower, Mr. Thompson, visited friends in the Loop on Sunday.

Miss Emma E. Stewart, of Pittsburg, has been visiting friends at Scranton and stopped over Sunday with Boalsburg friends, returning home on Monday.

After an absence of thirty-four years, David Gearhart and wife came in from Englewood, Kansas, and are visiting friends in the old Keystone State. David is a brother of Fred Gearhart, our efficient mail carrier, who was but three years old when the former went west and got rich.

Elmer Houtz, our jolly butcher, is off duty, nursing a sore hand. His trouble is erysipelas. M. B. Kuhn is in charge of the stock.

Fred Randolph was confined to his room several days in the beginning of the week, being laid, up with bronchial trouble.

Mr. and Mrs. John Osman came up from Shingletown and spent Monday with the Reed sisters, on Main Street.

Fred Montgomery, of Bellefonte, registered at the St. Elmo on Saturday and while in town filled our merchants' shelves with Potter-Hoy Hardware Company goods.

Scotia.

P. E. Hicks, the P. R. R. agent here, visited New York city last week as the guest of the company for which he works. He enjoyed the trip very much, but was glad to get home, as the city is too swift for him.

William Gates left on Monday for Cambria County, where he has accepted a position as track foreman for a large coal company. He is a good track man and his friends here feel sure he will make good.

E. R. Chambers, counsel for Bert Delige, accompanied by his stenographer, drove up from Bellefonte on Thursday of last week in behalf of his client's interests. The Colonel saw many familiar faces, as it has only been five years since he was here on the same business.

Otto Laufer and William Young returned on Saturday from Altoona, to which place they went to accept positions on street cars. Both are bright young men but their futures appear to be at Scotia and didn't go to Altoona with them. The next time you go, boys, leave no futures behind.

Scotia has about settled down to its normal condition after a week of excitement that will go down in history, not only here but in the county at large, as being the place where the most uncalled for and cruel murder of a poor, innocent, old woman was committed by a fiend with not one spark of manhood in him. The wheels of justice have started and we all hope and pray that the right party will be run down and dealt with according to law.

On Wednesday, the day of Mrs. Baudis' funeral, through the kindness of Superintendent Harry Valentine, the big ore washers were silent all day and at one o'clock every man, woman and child went over to the little farm house and listened to Rev. A. L. Frank preach a very pathetic sermon. His text was; "Thou shalt not kill." The body was taken to Pine Hall for burial.

Woodward.

William Wert, from Booneville, is visiting his sister, Mrs. Glantz.

James Weaver is ill with pneumonia.

Mrs. Sears, from Linden Hall, spent Sunday at the home of N. W. Eby.

F. E. Wieland and wife and daughters, Misses Edwinna and Mildred; Mr. J. W. Keller and son, Harry, and Mrs. Maggie Swabb and Miss Ruth Ross, all from Linden Hall, spent Sunday very pleasantly at the home of Mrs. R. M. Wolfe.

Allen Yearick is on the sick list.

Mrs. John Hosterman, from Spring Mills, spent a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Orndorf and brother, Lewis Orndorf.

Mrs. Austin Meyer, from Coburn, spent a day last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Weaver.

Mt. Eagle.

Everybody in Mt Eagle took in the Harvey sale on Thursday.

Cider making will soon be over and then will come sauer kraut.

Mrs. J. F. Deitz and daughter, Carry, walked to Curtin on Wednesday to take the morning train to Bellefonte, where they transacted business.

Will Deitz came in from the ridges to prepare to ship a carload of apples to Smith & Co.

Mrs. Harvey, of State College, is visiting at the home of Mrs. Etta Leathers.

Mrs. Charles McMurtrie, of the Hotel Howard, and her aunt, Miss Anna Shupp, of Altoona, took supper at the J. R. Pheasant home on Friday evening. Miss Shupp was on her way to New York city, combining sight-seeing and business.

E. E. Heverley, Irvin Yarnell and John Miller and Al. Robertson and son went to Bellefonte on Saturday to see Mr. Tener, our next Governor.

Misses Maude and Anna Deitz were passengers to Bellefonte on the evening train, on Saturday.

Miss Carry Shank came home on Saturday evening to spend the Sabbath with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Shank.

Standford Leathers, of, Williamsport, is visiting at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Leathers.

Miss Cora Leathers' little toy dog, "Caesar", ran away from home one day last week. She is advertising for its return, as may be found in another column of "The Republican."

Frank Deitz and his son, Will, were out hunting a carload of apples to ship to Ridgway.

Mrs. John Barger, of Curtin, spent Sunday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Bitner.

Mr. and Mrs. John Brumbaugh and family, of Altoona, spent Sunday at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Pheasant.

Charles Rich and his best girl, from Altoona, took dinner at the home of your scribe on Sun lay.

John Miller, who is employed at the Tyrone forge, left for that place on Sunday evening.

Milesburg.

Edgar Miles, the star first baseman of the Milesburg baseball club, has made good in the Dickinson Seminary football eleven. He is one of the star players there. The many friends of Edgar will be glad to see him some day be the hero of the gridiron.

Mrs. Edward Eckenroth, of Bellefonte, spent Sunday with her brother, Harry Austin, and family.

Edward Bullock has the advantage of most of the hunters in this vicinity. He does not go away from home to hunt. One day last week he shot a pheasant in his yard.

Mrs. Toner A. Hugg spent the last ten days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Kreamer, at Berwick.

The Milesburg brick plant resumed operations this week and expects to continue all winter.

Miriam Housel underwent an operation in the Bellefonte hospital for appendicitis last week, which, we are glad to note, was very successful.

Tracy Lambert came down from State College to hunt for a few days.

Mrs. James Laughlin, of Bureau, Illinois, is spending some time with her mother, Mrs. James McMullen.

Irvin Way, of Michigan, spent Saturday evening at the home of Wilson Heaton.

Robert Spicer is improving his property by the addition of a new eight foot porch.

Raymond Kellerman returned last week from Pittsburg, where he was employed.

William Gingher is improving his home by filling and leveling up his yard. We should have a lot of others like Mr. Gingher in town and not so many standing around and criticising men who try to improve the appearance of the town.

Frank and Howard Kepler, of Westport, are in town this week, installing William Fulton's steam plant.

Mrs. Clara Adams is spending the week at State College.

Mrs. S. M. Huff has returned home after a short visit with friends at Lamar.

C. H. Else has installed a lighting system in his store, which greatly adds to the appearance of that always popular place.

Wilbur and Edgar Miles, who are attending the Dickinson Seminary at Williamsport, spent Sunday at home.

Roll Bryan, Clarence Spicer and Perry Knarr, of Altoona, were visitors in town over Sunday.

For sale, by Toner Hugg—One store stove, one double-heater and one oil stove.

Blanchard.

Charles Good, of Lock Haven, has returned to his home after a pleasant visit of one week with his uncle, Frank Corter.

Fred Leathers and sister, Lucy, Mr. and Wilbur Hall and George Foresman, of Howard, started in their auto on Sunday night to attend the Methodist Episcopal church, at Beech Creek, but owing to a punctured tire they were compelled to stay in Eagleville until half-past eleven o'clock, when they were able to return home.

Charles Steck, of McKeesport, on his way home from visiting at Montgomery, stopped over on Tuesday night for a visit at the home of Mrs. Laura Bechdel.

Mrs. Nathan Kunes was brought home from Lock Haven hospital on Saturday and is being cared for by her many friends.

Mrs. Harvey Lingle, who has been very ill with tonsilitis for over a week, is able to be about again.

Mrs. Sarah Rothrock, who has been ill for a few weeks with a bad cold, is much better, under the careful direction of Dr. J. R. Tibbens.

Miss Mary Confer and Miss Annie Adams, of Milesburg, visited for several days this week with friends in Blanchard.

A chicken and noodle supper will be held in Quigley's hall, on Saturday night, November 5, for the benefit of the Baptist church roof. Come, and bring your friends.

Unionville.

D. Buck unloaded a car of coal on Friday.

The Rev. Dr. Piper, formerly of this place, was on our streets shaking hands with old friends last week.

Cornelius Brugger departed last week for Denver, Colorado.

Edward Iddings, who has been confined to his bed with typhoid fever, is slowly convalescing.

Word has just been received that Miss Mary Turner, who went to Clearfield a week ago, has typhoid fever and is in the Clearfield hospital at this writing. She is getting along as well as could be expected.

John Harper, wife and two children, of Youngstown, Ohio, are visiting Granpa Harpers. Mr. Harper is engineer on the Lake Erie Railroad, between McKees Rocks and Youngstown.

We are glad to note that Mrs. H. M. Stere, who has been confined to her bed for over two weeks, is slowly improving.

Rabbit season opens on the 1st of November and all the boys have their dogs trained to the minute and everything in readiness to lay the cottontail low.

J. H. Fisher made a business trip to Altoona on Monday.

J. E. Hall departed on Friday with the State College football team to witness the game in Philadelphia between Penn. State and the University of Pennsylvania. Mr. Hall is former State College man and enjoys the game. He returned with the team on Monday.

The I. O. O. F. banquet held in the I. O. O. F. hall on Saturday night was a grand success. Two large tables, loaded down with all kinds of good things, were surrounded twice over, seventy-five persons partaking of the delicious feast. A large graphophone rendered the music. Everybody present reported a most enjoyable time.

Miss Elizabeth Brugger and her friend, Mr. James, of Atlantic City, are visiting the former's mother, Mrs. Margaret Brugger.

Mrs. John Askins returned home on Monday from an extended tour through western States.

Mrs. Milton Peters is critically ill with erysipelas.

J. C. Stere is putting a new roof on his home.

Mrs. H. A. McKinney, of Port Matilda, who has been nursing her sister, Mrs. H. M. Stere, returned home on Monday.

On Monday night, about 11 o'clock, Miss Verna Moran was awakened by a noise in the chicken coop. She aroused her brother, George, who got the gun and thought he would shoot and scare whatever might be there. Immediately after the shot, a man was seen running from the coop and stopped behind the coal house. He soon made a dash through the mill race, when George opened fire. He evidently failed to hit him as the man ran for the railroad and was soon lost in the darkness. George investigated the coop and surrounding ground the next morning but no trace of the would-be thief could be found. Fortunately, no chickens were missing.

William H. Buck, of Buffalo, N. Y., came home on Monday for two or three weeks vacation. He expects to hunt some and he usually gets his share of the game.

DEATH OF LUTHER W. WERT

Succumbed to Bright's Disease; Son Ill With Typhoid Fever.

Bright's disease, resulting from an extended illness from typhoid fever, caused the death on Monday evening, last, of Luther W. Wert, at his late home, at Aaronsburg. A son, Gurney, is critically ill from typhoid fever at the present time.

Mr. Wert was a well known farmer and an active member of the Lutheran church. He was aged 53 years, 8 months and 5 days. Surviving are a widow and these children: Nelson and Gurney, of Aaronsburg, and Earle, of Philadelphia. Funeral services were held today, at 10 o'clock, and were under the auspices of the Knights of the Golden Eagle, of which the deceased was a member.

"BACK TO THE FARM"

XV.—The Mission of the Country Church.

By C. V. GREGORY.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

THE country church has a place to fill in the rural community that can be filled by nothing else. In too many cases the church has failed to make the most of its opportunities. Its growth has not kept pace with the growth of other rural institutions.

The country church is too often a mere imitation of the city church. The church officers and the pastors do not recognize that rural needs in religion are as distinctive as rural needs in education. In the city there is room for many churches and many denominations. In the country this is not the case. One church is enough for any country community, and if it is a large village that can support more than one. The curse of denominationalism has been the ruin of religious life in many a rural community. From being an exponent of peace the church too often has become a promoter of strife. A spirit of friendly rivalry has developed many times into a bitter fight between denominations. When churches fight the devil gets his due, and too often he has seized his opportunity to capture the whole community, bag and baggage.

The cases where church differences are carried to extremes are fortunately comparatively rare. The worst part of the division into denominations is found usually in the division of church support. A community that could support one thriving church divides its energies among half a dozen. The only bass singer is a Presbyterian perhaps, and the soprano is a Methodist and the rest of the choir are Baptists. As a result the singing in all the churches is a minus quantity, or nearly so. The only good Sunday school superintendent belongs to one denomination and all the good teachers belong to another. As a result all the Sunday schools lead a precarious existence.

One of the worst effects is seen in the social life of the community. The country church should be the center of rural social life. Where several weak churches have taken the place of one strong church this is impossible. A free mingling of all the people in the community on an equal basis is interfered with.

Another of the evils of denominationalism is the division of financial support. When the money that might support one strong church is divided among two or three the results are disastrous. The first effect is seen in the quality of the preachers. The salaries which the divided churches can afford to pay will attract only the poorest class of preachers. Often two or three towns are joined together and one preacher provided for all. He must spend a large share of his time traveling, and his only influence in the community is that which he exerts from the pulpit on Sunday. If instead of giving one preacher three churches in different towns he were given the three in the same town, he would have more time to give to his people.

In essentials the different churches have the same belief. Rural people want the plain, simple religion of Jesus Christ. They have no time to split hairs over fancied differences of creed. Few of them know the creed of the church to which they belong or whether it has a creed or not. The Bible is creed enough for them.

The increased financial support which the consolidated church receives means a better building, better lights, more money for the Sunday school and, above all, a better preacher. This last is the most difficult point. Ideal preachers for rural churches are difficult to secure. The theological schools do not recognize the country church as having needs that differ from those of the city church. The pastor who is sent to the country church is usually a city born and city trained man with city ideals. He has no understanding of rural life or rural problems and too often he has no desire to learn. He looks upon the country church as a stepping stone to a pulpit in the city.

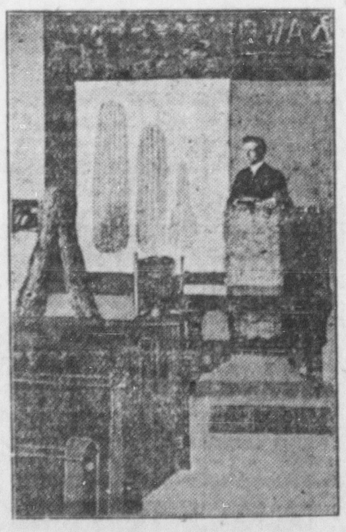
It is little wonder that a preacher with no sympathy with the problems or lives of his people cannot achieve the highest success. He gives the people theology when they want the simple faith. He tells them how to die when they are trying to learn how to live.

Modern agriculture has awakened the rural communities. It has renovated the rural schools, and where given a chance it is breathing the breath of life into the country churches. The idea is sacrilegious only to those who regard agriculture as an occupation only, like banking or law. Agriculture is much more than this. It is a life led by more than 40,000,000 people. The church that does not recognize that life and help the people who are living it to solve their problems cannot hope to become a power in its community.

The fundamental change must come with the education of the preacher, for he is the active force in the church. It makes little difference whether agriculture replaces some of the theology in the denominational schools or whether practical religion is given a larger place in the agricultural colleges. The successful country pastor of the future will be educated on a mixture of religion and agriculture. He will have a deep, abiding sympathy with country life and an appreciation of its problems. He will lift the church to its proper place in the community. The mission boards are sending many "industrial missionaries" to foreign lands. These are young men and women trained in the industrial colleges. They are training the heathen in the arts of agriculture and industry and are making better Christians of them than has ever been done before. If men of this type could be placed in the country churches of this nation the moral life of the land would be revolutionized.

I do not mean that agriculture need be preached from the pulpit, although that may be admissible on occasion. In the spring of 1910 Iowa faced a seed corn famine. An early freeze the fall before destroyed the vitality of a large share of the seed corn while it was still in the fields. As planting time approached it became evident that unless something unusual were done the greater share of the cornfields of the state would be planted to corn that would not produce more than a fraction of a stand. Twenty per cent of the best corn in the state, which was shown at a corn show at the agricultural college in January, was absolutely dead. Tests of ordinary seed over the state showed that not more than 25 per cent of the average seed was capable of producing strong stalks. In this crisis the extension department of the college, among other things, sent out letters to nearly all the country preachers in the state asking that they preach sermons on the importance of testing seed corn and throwing out the bad ears. A few of the preachers were insulted by the suggestion, considering that such a course would be a profanation of the church. But more than 400 preachers prepared sermons in accordance with the suggestions and delivered them. A better text could not have been desired. The analogy between seed corn and men was easily drawn, and from the idea of testing seed corn it was an easy step to the thought of how men must be tested. The most powerful sermons given in many of the country churches in Iowa that winter were those with seed corn for a theme. In addition, the preachers had the satisfaction of knowing that they had a part in adding to the material as well as to the spiritual welfare of their communities.

This case is an exception, but it illustrates the point. More often the pastor's agricultural knowledge will stand him in good stead outside the church door. It will give him an understanding of nature that will be reflected in his sermons and will reach the hearts of his people in a way that a sermon laden with the spirit of the paved streets never could do. The pastor who calls on one of the farmers in his community and talks with him intelligently regarding his work, perhaps giving him some helpful suggestions,



COUNTRY PASTOR READY TO DELIVER A "SEED CORN" SERMON.
[From snapshot taken before audience was admitted.]

will not need to complain that the men do not go to church. His visits to the various families in the neighborhood will be welcomed, and he will speedily gain an influence that will make him and the church he represents powerful factors for progress.

By co-operating with the teachers the preacher can do much to help along the educational work in the community. By co-operating with the grange or club he can do much to promote the social life. Indeed, he can make the church the social center of the community. The time thus spent will not be lost, for he will be repaid by the co-operation of the other leaders in the community in making the church the moral leader of the people.

Notice is hereby given, that every person, excepting Justice of the Peace, who shall hold any office or appointment of profit or trust under the Government of the United States or of this State, or of any city or incorporated district, whether a commissioned officer or otherwise a subordinate officer or agent who is or shall be employed under the Legislative, Executive or Judicary department of this State, or of the United States, or of any city or incorporated district, and also that every member of Congress and of the State Legislature, and of the select or common council of any city, or commissioners of any incorporated district is, by law, incapable of holding or exercising at the same time the office or appointment of judge, inspector or clerk of any election of this Commonwealth, and that no inspector, judge or other officer of any such elections, shall be eligible to any office to be then voted for, except that of an election officer.

Under the law of the Commonwealth for holding elections, the polls shall be opened at 7 o'clock A. M. and closed at 7 o'clock P. M.

Given under my hand and seal at my office in Bellefonte, this 18th day of October, in the year of our Lord, nineteen hundred and ten, and in the one hundred and thirty-fifth year of the Independence of the United States of America.

W. E. HURLEY, (Seal.)
Sheriff of Centre county.

Events Recalled By Quaint Old Papers

Last week "The Republican" published a beautiful and splendidly written obituary of the late Hon. Charles Huston, in his day one of the most prominent members of the bar in Central Pennsylvania. This week we publish a tribute of respect to the memory of the late Hon. Thomas Burnside, who served with distinction, both at the bar and on the bench of the higher courts. A reading of the sketch will reveal the names of some of the men who were members of the bar at the time of Judge Burnside's death and who in later years figured conspicuously in history-making events in the State and nation. The tribute to the memory of Judge Burnside follows:

Tribute of respect to the memory of the Hon. Thomas Burnside.

At a meeting of the members of the Bar and officers of the Court, of Centre County, held at the Prothonotary's office in Bellefonte on the 26th day of March A. D. 1851 for the purpose of testifying their regret at the death of the Hon. Thomas Burnside.

On motion James McManus Esqr. was called to the chair and Clinton Welch Esqr. appointed Secretary.

The object of the meeting having been stated from the chair, on motion,

Resolved, That a Committee of five be appointed to draft resolutions appropriate to the occasion, whereupon the chair appointed H. N. McAllister, A. G. Curtin, B. R. Petriken, Jno. T. Hoover and John Tonner Esqrs. who having retired for that purpose for a short time, reported the following:

Resolved, That the Members of the Bar and Officers of the Court have heard with sincere regret of the death of the Hon. Thomas Burnside.

Resolved, That as a husband and father he was kind and affectionate, as a citizen, public spirited, enterprising and energetic, as a legislator, honest, practical, and efficient, as a lawyer, faithful, successful, and courteous, as a jurist, whether on the Bench at Nisi Prius or a Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, eminent for his learning and integrity.

Resolved, That in his death the State has lost one of her most useful, the community in which he lived, one of her most benevolent and hospitable citizens.

Resolved, As a mark of respect for his memory we will close our respective offices on the day of the funeral, attend the same in a body and wear black crape on the left arm for thirty days.

Resolved, That A. G. Curtin, R. G. Durham and B. R. Petriken Esqrs. be a committee to communicate a copy of the proceedings of this meeting to the family of the deceased with an assurance of the condolence of the members of the Bar and Officers of the Court for the loss they have sustained.

Resolved, That H. N. McAllister Esqr. present these proceedings in Court and request that the same be entered of record.

Resolved, That the proceedings of this meeting be published in the several papers of Centre County.

The above resolutions having been read were unanimously adopted.

Resolved, That we will proceed to meet the remains of Judge Burnside which are now on their way and accompany them to this place.

On motion adjourned.

JAMES MCMANUS, Pres't.
CLINTON WELCH, Sec'y.

And now the 28th April 1851 recorded and filed by direction of the Court.

JNO. T. HOOVER, Prothy.

Next week "The Republican" will publish letters and extracts of letters exchanged between prominent residents of Bellefonte and the representatives of this county in Legislatures at Harrisburg, as written sixty, seventy and eighty years ago. The candor of the writers on the subject of pending legislation and the duty of legislators will be found decidedly interesting and refreshing.

Just the Same Size.

John K. Tener, the Republican nominee for Governor, stands about six feet, four or five inches. Place him in any group of men and he towers head and shoulders above all. Dr. L. E. Kidder, of Boalsburg, also a good Republican, isn't quite so tall. When Mr. Tener visited Bellefonte on Saturday, last, Dr. Kidder was among those to greet him. During the evening, and while Mr. Tener was greeting hundreds of visitors at the Brockerhoff House, Dr. Kidder remarked to the editor of "The Republican": "Did you know that Tener and I are the same size?" We confessed that we couldn't figure it out, whereupon Dr. Kidder smiled and remarked: "Well its true, all right. Tener's six feet, five and I'm five feet, six."

Score one for the Doctor.

Unclaimed Letter.

The following letters remain unclaimed at the Bellefonte postoffice for the last week: Mrs. W. P. Birtley, G. C. Campbell, Miss Maud Covelman, Fred C. Dale, E. Blair Fisher, Rev. R. A. Foster, John McGhee, Harry Meiley, Esq., M. D., A. V. Sunday, Ivan Kolenic, W. R. H. Lewin. Persons calling for these letters will kindly explain to the postmaster that the same have been advertised in "The Republican."

Meadville Gets Encampment.

The grand encampment of the I. O. O. F. at Allentown, on Thursday, last, adopted all the recommendations of the finance committee including these items.

An appropriation for mileage for ten each of the officers for each day the grand encampment is in session

An appropriation for mileage for the grand officers attending the annual session at 3 cents for each mile traveled.

That the per capita tax be fixed at 15 cents per term.

An appropriation of $38.97 to meet amount overdrawn for postage, express and telephone.

An appropriation of $394.50 for refund of dispensation.

An appropriation of $1,473.96 for fitting up new office; $300 was also appropriated for an organizer to stimulate renewed interest in the order.

Meadville won for next year's session over Butler and Shamokin.

The revival of these is a fad of the minute.

Used in certain rooms with old-fashioned furniture, the effect is often very good.

It is quite an excellent means for using up odd pieces of cretonne, silk or printed cotton.

The GOOSE GIRL

By HAROLD MacGRATH

Copyright, 1909, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

The three of them were immediately attracted by a singular noise in the corridor. The door swung in violently, crashing against the wall and shivering into atoms the Venetian mirror. The king, the prince and the chancellor were instantly upon their feet. The king clutched the back of his chair with a grip of iron. Gretchen? Her highness? What was Gretchen doing here? Ah, could he have flown!

The duke came in first, and he waited till the others were inside. Then he shut the door with lesser violence and rushed over to the chancellor.

"Herbeck, you villain!"

The chancellor stared at the gypsy, at Von Arnsberg, at Grumbach.

"Herbeck, you black scoundrel!" cried the duke. "Can you realize how difficult it is not to take you by the throat and strangle you here and now?"

"He is mad!" said Herbeck, bracing himself against the desk.

"Yes. I am mad, but it is the sane madness of a terribly wronged man. Come here, you gypsy!" The duke seized Herbeck's hand and pressed it down fiercely on the desk. "Look at that and tell me if it is not the hand of a Judas!"

"That is the hand, highness," said the gypsy without hesitation.

The duke flung the hand aside. As he did so something snapped in Herbeck's brain, though at that instant he was not conscious of it.

"It was you—you! It was your hand that wrecked my life—yours! Ah, is there such villainy? Are such men born and do they live? My wife dead, my own heart broken, Arnsberg ruined and disgraced! And these two children, which is mine? Villain, what have you to say? What was your purpose?"

How many years, thought Herbeck, had he been preparing for this moment? How long had he been steeling his heart against this very scene? Futile dream! He drew himself together with a supreme effort. He would face this hour as he had always planned to face it. Found out! He looked at his finger, touched it with an impersonal curiosity. He had forgotten all about such a possibility. A little finger to have stopped the wheel of so great a scheme! Irony!

"Your highness," he said, his voice soft and strangely clear, "I have been waiting for this hour. So I am found out! How little we know what God intends!"

"You speak of God? You blaspheme!"

"Bear with me for a space. I shall not hold you long."

"But why? What have I done to you that you should wreck all I hold dear?"

Herbeck fumbled with his collar. "I have practically governed this country for sixteen years. In that time I have made it prosperous and happy. I have given you a substantial treasury. I have made you an army. I have brought peace where you would have brought war. To my people God will witness that I have done my duty as I saw it. One day I fell the victim of a mad dream. And to think that I almost won!"

"And I?" said Hildegarde, her hands clinched and pressed against her bosom. "What have you done to me, who am innocent of any wrong? What have you done to me?"

"You, my child? I have wronged you greatest of all. The wrong I have done to you is irreparable. Ah, have not my arms hungered for the touch of you, my heart ached for the longing of you? To see you day after day, always humble before you, always glad to kiss the back of your hand! Have I not lived in hell, your highness?" turning to the duke.

"What am I, and who am I?" whispered Hildegarde, her heart almost ceasing to beat.

"I am your father!"

The Grand Duke of Ehrenstein beheld the chancellor with that phase of astonishment which leaves the mind unclouded. What a project! What a mind to conceive it, to perfect it down to so small a detail as a jeweler's mark in the gold of the locket! And a little finger to betray it. In a flash he saw vividly all this man had undergone day by day, unfaltering, unhesitant, forgetting nothing, remembering everything but the one insignificant item which was to overthrow him.

Prince Ludwig took off his hat. "Herbeck, you are a great politician."

"No, prince," replied Herbeck with ineffable sadness. "Had I been a great politician I should have succeeded. Ah, give this to my merit; self never entered into this dream. It was all done for my child."

Hildegarde did not move, nor had she moved since the revelation.

"Hildegarde," said the duke, "you shall become my daughter, and you shall dwell here till the end of your days. I will try to right the wrong that has been done to you."

"No, your highness," she replied. "There is but one place for me, and that is at my father's side." And resolutely she walked to the chancellor's left, and her hand stole down and met his firmly. "My father, I forgive you," she said, with quiet dignity.

"You forgive me?" The chancellor could not believe his ears.

"Yes, father."

Then, recalling all the child hunger in his arms and heart, he swept her to his breast convulsively, and the unloosed tears dropped upon her bright head.

"And who am I?" said Gretchen.

"Breunner, you say this little goose girl is my daughter?"

"I solemnly swear it, highness. Look into her face again carefully."

The duke did so, a hand on either cheek. He scrutinized every contour, the color of the eyes, the low, broad brow, the curve of the chin. Out of the past he conjured up the mother's face. Yes, beyond any doubt there was a haunting likeness, and he had never noted it before.

"But who will prove it to the world?" he cried hopelessly, still holding Gretchen's wondering face between his hands.

"I shall prove it," said the king.

"You? And how?"

"I shall marry Gretchen. I shall make her a queen. That will be proof enough."

"A fine stroke, nephew; a bold stroke!" Prince Ludwig laid his hand upon the king's shoulder with rare affection.

"If you accept her without further proof I, her father, can do no less." And the duke led her over to the king, gravely joining their hands.

"Gretchen!" murmured the king.

"I do not know how to act like a princess."

"I shall teach you."

Gretchen laid her head on his breast. She was very tired and much bewildered.

The duke paced the length of the cabinet several times. No one interrupted his meditation. Back and forth, one hand hanging to the opposite shoulder, the other folding over his chin. Then he paused with abruptness.

"Your majesty," said the grand duke, "I regret that your father is not alive to accept my apologies for so basely misjudging him. Arnsberg, nothing that I can do will restore these wasted years. But I offer you the portfolio."

"I am only a broken man, your highness—too old."

"It is my will."

"As for you," said the duke to the gypsy, "go, and if you ever step this side of the frontier again you will be shot out of hand." He stopped again in front of Grumbach. "I promised to have you shot in the morning. That promise holds. But a train leaves for Paris a little after midnight. My advice is for you not to miss it."

"And my father, your highness?" said Hildegarde bravely.

"Herbeck, your estates are confiscated; your name is struck from the civic and military lists. Have you any ready funds?"

"A little, your highness."

"Enough to take you forever out of this part of the world?"

"Yes, your highness."

"You do not ask to be forgiven, and I like that. You have, perhaps, three hours to get your things in order. Tomorrow you will be judged and condemned. But you, Hildegarde"—

"GRETCHEN!" MURMURED THE KING.

"No, your highness; we shall both take the train for Paris. Gretchen, you will be happy."

Gretchen ran and flung herself into Hildegarde's arms, and the two of them wept. Hildegarde pushed Gretchen away gently.

"Come, father; we have so little time."

And this was the sum of the duke's revenge.

It never took Carmichael long to make up his mind definitely. He found his old friend the cabman in the Platz, and they drove like mad to the consulate. An hour here sufficed to close his diplomatic career and seal it hermetically. The clerk, b[illegible] go on like Tennyson's brook, forever and forever. Next he went to the residence of his banker in the Konigstrasse and got together all his available funds.

Eleven o'clock found Carmichael in his rooms at the Grand hotel, feverishly packing his trunk and bag. Paris! He would go also even if they passed on to the remote ends of the world.

The train stood waiting in the gloomy Bahnhof. The guards patrolled the platform. Presently three men came out of the station door. Two were officers. The third, Colonel von Wallenstein, was in civilian dress. He was sullen and depressed.

Said one of the officers: "And it is the express command of General Ducwitz that you will return here under the pain of death. Is that explicit?"

"It is." The colonel got into his compartment and slammed the door viciously.

In the next compartment sat Grumbach. He was smoking his faithful pipe. He was withal content. This was far more satisfactory than standing up before the firing line, and, besides, he had made history in Ehrenstein that night. They would not forget the name of Breunner right away. To America with a clean slate and a reposeful conscience—it was more than he had any reasonable right to expect. Tekla! He laughed sardonically. She was no doubt sound asleep by this time, and the end of the chapter would never be written for her. What fools these young men a-courting were! War and famine and pestilence—did these not always follow at the heels of women?

As the station master's bell rang the door opened and a man jumped in. He tossed his bag into the corner and plumped down in the seat.

"Captain!"

"You, Hans?"

"Yes. Where are you going?"

"I am weary of Dreiberg, so I am taking a little vacation."

"For how long?" suspiciously.

"Oh, for ever so long!" evasively.

Hans said nothing more. He was full of wisdom. He had an idea. The fleeing chancellor and his daughter were on the train, and he was certain that his friend Carmichael knew it.

By the aid of certain small briberies on the train and in Paris Carmichael gathered bit by bit that the destination of the woman he loved was America. But never once did he set eyes upon her till she and her father mounted the gangplank to the vessel which was to carry them across the wide Atlantic. The change in Herbeck was pitiable. His face had aged twenty years in these sixty odd hours. His clothes, the same he had worn that ever memorable night, hung loosely about his gaunt frame, and there was a vacancy in his eyes which was eloquent of mental collapse. Carmichael abided his time.

A French newspaper contained a full account of Herbeck's coup and his subsequent flight. It also recounted the excitement of the following day, the appearance of Gretchen on the steps of the palace and the great shouting of the people as they acclaimed her the queen of Jugendheit.

The second day out Carmichael's first opportunity came. He discovered Herbeck and his daughter leaning against the rail. He watched them uneasily, wondering how he might approach without startling her. At last he keyed up his courage.

"Good morning, your highness," he stammered, and inwardly cursed his stupidity.

At the sound of his voice she turned, and there was no mistaking the gladness in her eyes.

"Mr. Carmichael!"

"Yes. I was surprised to learn that you were taking the same boat as myself."

How clumsy he was, she thought. For she had known his every move since the train drew out of Dreiberg.

"Father, here is our friend, Herr Carmichael."

"Carmichael?" said Herbeck slowly. "Ah, yes. Good morning."

And Carmichael instantly comprehended that his name recalled nothing to the other man's remembrance.

"You are returning to America?" she asked.

"For good, perhaps. To tell the truth, I ran away, deserted my post, though technically I have already resigned. But America has been calling me for some days. You have never been to sea before?"

"No; it is all marvelous and strange to me."

"Let us walk, my child," said Herbeck.

"You will excuse me, Mr. Carmichael?" she said. Never more the rides in the fair mornings; never more the beautiful gardens, the music, the galloping of soldiers who drew their sabers whenever they passed her. Never more any of these things.

"Can I be of any assistance?" he said in an undertone.

"No," sadly.

The days, more or less monotonous, went past. Sometimes he saw her alone on deck, but only for a little while. Her father was slowly improving, but with this improvement came the natural desire for seclusion. So he came on deck only at night.

The night on which the vessel bore into the moist, warm air of the gulf stream was full of moonshine, of smooth, phosphorescent billows. Herbeck had gone below. The girl leaned over the rail, alone and lonely. And Carmichael, seeing her, could no longer still the desire in his heart. He came up to her.

"See!" she exclaimed, pointing to the little eddies of foam speeding along the hull. "Do you know what they remind me of? Mermaids' fingers grasping and clutching at the boat as if to drag it down below."

How beautiful she was with the frost of moonlight on her hair!

"You must not talk like that," he admonished.

"I am very unhappy."

"And when you say that you make me so too."

"Why?" She had spoken the word at last.

"Do you remember the night you dropped your fan?" leaning so closely toward her that his arm pressed against hers.

"I remember."

"You put that word then. In honor I dared not answer. You were a princess! I was only a soldier of fortune. But now that you are in trouble, now that you have need of me, I may answer. I may tell you now why, why I have thrown ambition and future to the winds, why I am here at your side tonight. Need I tell you? Do you not know, and have you not known? Am I cruel to speak of love in the moment of your great affliction? Well, I must be cruel. I love you faithfully and loyally, now and hereafter, through this sad day into happier ones. I ask nothing for this love I offer. I ask only that I may use it in your service, in good times or bad."

"ASK WHAT YOU WILL."

"Ask what you will," she whispered. "I am happy now!"

THE END.

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION SUBMITTED TO THE CITIZENS OF THIS COMMONWEALTH FOR THEIR APPROVAL OR REJECTION, BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA, AND PUBLISHED BY ORDER OF THE SECRETARY OF THE COMMONWEALTH, IN PURSUANCE OF ARTICLE XVIII OF THE CONSTITUTION.

Number One.

A CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to section twenty-six of article five of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the following amendment to section twenty-six of article five of the Constitution of Pennsylvania be, and the same is hereby, proposed, in accordance with the eighteenth article thereof:—

That section 26 of Article V., which reads as follows: "Section 26. All laws relating to courts shall be general and of uniform operation, and the organization, jurisdiction, and powers of all courts of the same class or grade, so far as regulated by law, and the force and effect of the process and judgments of such courts, shall be uniform; and the General Assembly is hereby prohibited from creating other courts to exercise the powers vested by this Constitution in the judges of the Courts of Common Pleas and Orphans' Courts," be amended so that the same shall read as follows:—

Section 26. All laws relating to courts shall be general and of uniform operation, and the organization, jurisdiction, and powers of all courts of the same class or grade, so far as regulated by law, and the force and effect of the process and judgments of such courts, shall be uniform; but, notwithstanding any provisions of this Constitution, the General Assembly shall have full power to establish new courts, from time to time, as the same may be needed in any city or county, and to prescribe the powers and jurisdiction thereof, and to increase the number of judges in any courts now existing or hereafter created, or to reorganize the same, or to vest in other courts the jurisdiction theretofore exercised by courts not of record, and to abolish the same wherever it may be deemed necessary for the orderly and efficient administration of justice.

ROBERT McAFEE,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Number Two.

RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, so as to eliminate the requirement of payment of taxes as a qualification of the right to vote.

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur), That the following amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania be, and the same is hereby, proposed, in accordance with the eighteenth article thereof:

That section one of article eight be amended, by striking out the fourth numbered paragraph thereof, so that the said section shall read as follows:

Section 1. Every male citizen twenty-one years of age, possessing the following qualifications, shall be entitled to vote at all elections, subject however to such laws requiring and regulating the registration of electors as the General Assembly may enact.

First. He shall have been a citizen of the United States at least one month.

Second. He shall have resided in the State one year (or if, having previously been a qualified elector or native-born citizen of the State, he shall have removed therefrom and returned, then six months), immediately preceding the election.

Third. He shall have resided in the election district where he shall offer to vote at least two months immediately preceding the election.

A true copy of Resolution No. 2.

ROBERT McAFEE,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Number Three.

A JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, so as to consolidate the courts of common pleas of Allegheny County.

Section 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the following amendment to the Constitution of Pennsylvania be, and the same is hereby, proposed, in accordance with the eighteenth article thereof:—

That section six of article five be amended, by striking out the said section, and inserting in place thereof the following:

Section 6. In the county of Philadelphia all the jurisdiction and powers now vested in the district courts and courts of common pleas, subject to such changes as may be made by this Constitution or by law, shall be in Philadelphia vested in five distinct and separate courts of equal and co-ordinate jurisdiction, composed of three judges each. The said courts in Philadelphia shall be designated respectively as the court of common pleas number one, number two, number three, number four, and number five, but the number of said courts may be by law increased, from time to time, and shall be in like manner designated by successive numbers. The number of judges in any of said courts, or in any county where the establishment of an additional court may be authorized by law, may be increased, from time to time, and whenever such increase shall amount in the whole to three, such three judges shall compose a distinct and separate court as aforesaid, which shall be numbered as aforesaid. In Philadelphia all suits shall be instituted in the said courts of common pleas without designating the number of the said court, and the several courts shall distribute and apportion the business among them in such manner as shall be provided by rules of court, and each court to which any suit shall be thus assigned, shall have exclusive jurisdiction thereof, subject to change of venue, as shall be provided by law.

In the county of Allegheny all the jurisdiction and powers now vested in the several numbered courts of common pleas shall be vested in one court of common pleas, composed of all the judges in commission in said courts. Such jurisdiction and powers shall extend to all proceedings at law and in equity which shall have been instituted in the several numbered courts, and shall be subject to such changes as may be made by law, and subject to change of venue as provided by law. The president judge of said court shall be selected as provided by law. The number of judges in said court may be by law increased from time to time. This amendment shall take effect on the first day of January succeeding its adoption.

A true copy of Resolution No. 3.

ROBERT McAFEE,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Number Four.

A JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to section eight, article nine, of the Constitution of Pennsylvania.

Section 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the following is proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in accordance with the provisions of the eighteenth article thereof:—

Amendment to Article Nine, Section Eight.

Section 2. Amend section eight, article nine, of the Constitution of Pennsylvania, which reads as follows:—

"Section 8. The debt of any county, city, borough, township, school district, or other municipality or incorporated district, except as herein provided, shall never exceed seven per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, nor shall any such municipality or district incur any new debt, or increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding two per centum upon such assessed valuation of property, without the assent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law; but any city, the debt of which now exceeds seven per centum of such assessed valuation, may be authorized by law to increase the same three per centum, in the aggregate, at any one time, upon such valuation," so as to read as follows:—

Section 8. The debt of any county, city, borough, township, school district, or other municipality or incorporated district, except as herein provided, shall never exceed seven per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, nor shall any such municipality or district incur any new debt, or increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding two per centum upon such assessed valuation of property, without the assent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law; but any city, the debt of which now exceeds seven per centum of such assessed valuation, may be authorized by law to increase the same three per centum, in the aggregate, at any one time, upon such valuation, except that any debt or debts hereinafter incurred by the city and county of Philadelphia for the construction and development of subways for transit purposes, or for the construction of wharves and docks, or the reclamation of land to be used in the construction of a system of wharves and docks, as public improvements, owned or to be owned by said city and county of Philadelphia, and which shall yield to the city and county of Philadelphia current net revenue in excess of the interest on said debt or debts and of the annual installments necessary for the cancellation of said debt or debts, may be excluded in ascertaining the power of the city and county of Philadelphia to become otherwise indebted: Provided, That a sinking fund for their cancellation shall be established and maintained.

DEATH OF HENRY MEAD

Resident of Clearfield; Lived in Centre County in 1868.

Henry Mead died at Clearfield, on Sunday morning, October 9th, at the advanced age of 79 years. It can be truthfully said of him he was a good neighbor, and one who was respected by all who knew him. To him was alloted more than his three-score years and ten and while he lived he served his Master well and faithfully. He was a life-long member of the Presbyterian church of which he served at various times as an officer and from which he never was absent as long as his health permitted. His faithful wife having gone before him, only a little over a year ago, his going home would be a happy reunion to them, for we live in the belief "We Shall Know Each Other There." Coming to this place some 45 years ago, they have lived in their country home ever since and while their's was the quiet unostentations life of the farmer, and their deeds were not "made famous," yet in their quiet serving of the Master and in the rearing of a family of good men and women, their life's work the well done and it would be their reward to hear the welcome plaudit, "Well Done Good and Faithful Servants" and they rest from their labors and their works do follow them.

He was born in Ridgway, Elk county, and moved from there to Centre county where he was married to Lydia J. Alexander, coming to this county in 1868.—Clearfield Raftsman's Journal.

Box for Hooks and Eyes.

Have you ever hunted in vain for the special size of hook and eye you needed? If not you're an abnormally neat woman, or one given to buttons or pins.

During that mad hunt through a badly mixed box of sewing utensils you doubtless vowed to have a separate hook and eye box forwith. Then you promptly forgot.

The next time immediately hunt a number of card envelopes, and on the flap of each one sew a hook and eye to show the size and color within. Put these envelopes neatly in a small box and your miserable fishing days are over. There should be separate holders for cards of hooks and eyes, detached ones that have not been used and for those that have been ripped from a dress, as is the habit of some economical women.

Small boxes with the hook sewed or pasted to the lid take the place of an envelope, but take up more room and are less easily handled.

Areliablemedicine-Notanarcotic.

Get the genuine Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package. It is safe and effective. Contains no opiates. Refuse substitutes. Sold by C. M. Parrish.

Economy.

No woman can steadily and regularly save money who does not make efforts at self-control in small expenditures so that eventually it becomes a habit.

Here and There.

William J. Musser and son, Boyd, were last week visitors to Waverly, N. Y.

Miss Eva McGowan, of Snow Shoe, visited in Bellefonte several days last week, being the guest of Miss Stella Daley.

D. C. Walter. of Milesburg, was a caller to "The Republican" office yesterday. Mr. Walter advertises in another columu a desirable house and lot for sale.

During the absence of Rev. Mr. Sower, on Sunday, last, James Rine occupied the pulpit at Pleasant Gap, Lemont and one or two other places in Mr. Sower's charge.

J. Harris Hoy came over from Clarence to spend Sunday with Bellefonte friends. He returned on Monday to resume his duties as head book-keeper for the Clarence Supply Company.

Miss Florence E. Long, of Flemington, is taking a law course at Dickinson College, at Carlisle. Prior to entering Dickinson she studied law for one year at Syracuse University.

"Dave." Gingery, of Martha, who several days ago joined the ranks of readers of "The Republican," was in town on Saturday evening and attended the reception at the Elks, of which he is a member.

Wilbur Wagner, of Martha, was a genial visitor in town on Thursday of last week. Mr. Wagner is a stanch Republican and, like the rest of us, is interested in the election of the whole Republican ticket next month.

It is no little pleasure to us to be able to acknowledge receipt of a check from James Gault, of Howard, advancing his subscription to September, 1911. Mr. Gault is an appreciative reader of "The Republican" and that is exactly the type of subscribers we try our very best to serve.

Attend the chicken corn soup and oyster supper this (Thursday) evening at the United Brethren church annex, which the ladies of the church will serve to the public. Their reputation for good cooking and liberality is not excelled and this alone should be an inducement to all to attend.

Postmaster Philip D. Foster, Irvin L. Holmes and George B. Thompson were in the delegation that came down from State College on Saturday evening and extended greetings to Mr. Tener and his party. Those present from Howard included Dr. W. J. Kurtz and D. W. Pletcher.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Clayton Brown returned home on Sunday after a delightful little visit to Philadelphia. Like some more people we know, Mr. and Mrs. Brown formerly lived in Philadelphia and liked that city all right, but when it came to choosing as between the Quaker City and Bellefonte, they concluded to let William Penn keep his old town and again located here.

The adult Bible class of the Methodist Episcopal church was royally entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Morgan, on North Spring Street, on Thursday evening of last week. Quite a large number were in attendance, which greatly pleased Mr. and Mrs. Morgan and also Rev. Dr. Thomas S. Wilcox, teacher of the class. After considering numerous plans for future work for the class, all present partook of delicious refreshments served in honor of the occasion. Before departing for their homes the class held brief devotional services.

A good, old-fashioned square dance was given by Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Young at their home on Thursday evening of last week. Those present included Misses Florence Hamilton, Margaret Richards, Helen McClellan, Louise McClellan, Mono Struble, Ruth Derstine, Ruth Young, Ruth Howley, Minnie Bachman, Maud Confer, Blanche Bitner, Margaret Rosenhoover, Hannah Dunkle and Agatha Wensel and Andrew Shivery, Dale Musser, William Garver, William Dugan, Oscar Zong, Carl Detrick and Edward Decker.

A new subscriber to "The Republican" of whom we are justly proud is William Lykens, of Scotia, the scene of last week's brutal murder. Mr. Lykens is one of the men who, without waiting to be asked, at once went to work and did what he could to help unravel the mystery surrounding the killing of Mrs. John Baudis. No finer tribute can be paid a community than to have it truthfully said that its people are always willing to help one another. This may be truthfully said of Scotia, and Mr. Lykens is one of the best citizens of that hustling town.

Although Registre Earle C. Tuten has been in the fire insurance business as a side issue but a comparatively few days, he has taken on a life patron with whom he is greatly pleased. It will be recalled that some days ago Mr. Tuten purchased D. W. Woodring's fire insurance agency here, planning to look after the business in odd hours until his term of office expires and then give it his entire attention. Earle is admirably suited for the work and his friends are more than confident that he will make it a splendid success. On Tuesday a brand, new baby boy arrived at the Tuten home and his father, with an eye to business, promptly marked him down for all kinds of policies and incidently reserved a niche for him in the insurance firm of Tuten & Son.

Johnston Hall, of Titusville, is the guest of Lawyer W. Harrison Walker.

"The Time, the Place and the Girl" at Garman's Opera House, Thursday, Nov. 3rd.

Miss Elizabeth Fryberger, of Philipsburg, was an over-Sunday guest at the Brachbill home.

Edwin F. Garman was a Tyrone visitor on Sunday, spending the day with his brothers, Allen S. and Robert T., of that place.

County Commissioner John L. Dunlap and son attended the funeral of his uncle, William Homan, two miles east of Aaronsburg, on Saturday.

Rev. Dr. A. M. Schmidt will return home the latter part of the week and will hold the usual Sunday services in the Reformed church.

George Potter, of Baltimore, Md,, prominent in the management of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. spent several days in town last week.

Dr. L. E. Kidder, of Boalsburg, was one of the prominent Republicans in town on Saturday night to help make the reception for Mr. Tener a big success.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Harvey Hile, of Boston, were visitors in town over Sunday. Mr. Hile is a former Centre County boy and now a prominent street railway man in Boston.

Major J. H. Allport, Mr. and Mrs. William Rees and Miss Agnes Donnelly, of Patton, were Bellefonte visitors on Sunday. They were making an automobile trip to Spruce Creek.

Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton B. Humes, Mr. and Mrs. William Hepburn and Miss F. H. Hepburn, of Jersey Shore, were last week guests of William P. and his sister, Miss Mila Humes.

Our good friend, George Robb, of Coleville, who is going to vote for Mr. Tener and the whole Republican ticket, dropped in a day or two ago and advanced his subscription to "The Republican" another year.

On Sunday evening, October 30, a series of evangelistic meetings will begin in the First United Brethren church, corner of High and Thomas Streets, of which Rev. C. W. Winey is pastor. The meetings promise to be interesting. Let all interested in the good work attend.

Mrs. Joseph, widow of the late Emil Joseph, on account of closing up her home, will dispose of all her household furnishings at private sale. Parties desiring to make purchases can inspect the goods anytime by calling at her residence, on corner of Spring and Howard Streets, Bellefonte.

Harvey Workman, who several years ago was a fireman on the Central Railroad of Pennsylvania, now employed in a similar capacity by the Pennsylvania Railroad at Altoona, was a pleasant caller at this office several days ago. Harvey and his family have been spending their vacation at the home of his father, John Workman, at Hecla.

It was our pleasure on Saturday last to enroll as a subscriber S. T. Richards, a good Republican from Martha, who was in town to greet John K. Tener and thus testify to his interest in Republican success at the polls on November 8. Mr. Richards is an active young Republican and we are glad to have him on our list of regular readers of "The Republican."

Mrs. Emil Joseph has decided to close her home and with her son, Manuel, take apartments at the Bush House for the winter. Edmund, the other son, is a Sophomore at State College. It is entirely probable that eventually Mrs. Joseph will remove to New York, where her sister resides, and make that city her future home.

W. G. Furst, one of the Republicans in the Buffalo Run valley who is always willing to do his part for the ticket, was a visitor in town on Saturday and participated in the Tener reception. Two others in the throng to greet Mr. Tener were Superintendent Harry C. Valentine and Assistant Superintendent William Burnside, of the Scotia mines.

Snow Shoe had a representative contingent in town on Saturday night. In the party were Davy Chambers, M. D. Kelley and Dr. Edward Harris. Davy was one of the leading participants in the reception in honor of Mr. Tener and with Mr. Kelley and Dr. Harris later in the evening took in the Elks reception and turkey dinner.

A. C. Thomas, of Stormstown, last week had himself enrolled as a subscriber to "The Republican" and knowing his desire for a good, hustling Centre County newspaper it shall be our aim to more than meet his demands in this respect. Like many others in that section of the county, Mr. Thomas was deeply interested in the recent murder at Scotia and by securing a copy of "The Republican" he was able to read the most complete and accurate report published by any Centre County newspaper.

Walker township was represented by a group of loyal Republicans and jolly, good fellows at the reception on Saturday night in honor of Mr. Tener. James C. Nolan, D. O. Dorman and Oliver and George Yarnell were in the party. The Varnells are regular readers of "The Republican" and Mr. Nolan and Mr. Dorman, before returning home, became enrolled as subscribers. All four men have their coats off and are working for Republican victory and it will be the pleasure of "The Republican" to work with them for Tener and the whole Republican ticket.
